Whitaker Reveals Truth About Italy

Slow Strangulation Of Italian Economy

Nazis Strip Country Like Plague Of Locusts

This is the tenth article in John T. Whitaker's series—"The Truth About Italy." Mr. Whitaker, expelled from Italy, will not return there, nor will he be replaced, and consequently can reveal the collapse of fascism without fear of censor or reprisal.

BEYOND THE ITALIAN FRONTIER—The slow strangulation of Italian economy by British seapower comes as no surprise.

But with industrial production roughly 50 per cent off in a year, and with the peasants and workers lacking spaghetti and olive oil, something more than the British blockade is at work:

WHITAKER

The Nazis have come into Italy, and when they run over a land they strip it as clean as a plague of locusts.

First, the blockade. The last official trade figures available for Italy covered the year 1938, which is a normal period.

The impressive thing about Italian imports is that they came from the British and French empires or from neutrals beyond the Suez canal, Gibraltar and the Dardanelles.

The statistics are eloquent for that year. (They are expressed in metric quintals—100 kilograms—equal to about 220 pounds.)

Of 1,571,000 quintals of raw cotton imported by Italy,

EXCLUSIVE

1,537,000 quintals came from beyond Suez, Gibraltar, the Dardanelles or regions under British control.

Of 326,000 quintals of raw wool, 305,000 lay under British control.

Of iron ore importations totaling 4,003,000 quintals, 2,829,000 quintals came from regions now under the block-

Majority In Britain Want R.A.F. To Bomb Civilians

Fifty-Three Per Cent. Approve Adoption Of All-Out Bombing

By HELEN KIRKPATRICK

LONDON, May 5—(CDN)—Most people in Great Britain believe that the Royal Air Force should adopt the policy of bombing Germany's civilian population, according to the latest Gallop poll. Fifty-three per cent approved adoption of all-out bombing of civilians, 38 per cent disapproved, and 9 per cent took neither side.

EXCLUSIVE

Figures for different regions show an interesting distinction between the most heavily bombed areas and the regions which have not been within earshot of bombs. The greatest number of those advocating civilian bombing—76 per cent—live in Cumberland, most northwesterly county of England, on the Scottish border; in adjacent Westmoreland, and in the north riding of Yorkshire, an area which has been virtually untouched by Nazi explosives.

And conversely, those areas of London which have suffered most are more disapproving of civilian bombing than relatively untouched regions.

Bombed London areas are 47 per cent against the suggested policy while, on the other hand, bombed provincial areas are 54 per cent in favor.

POSSIBLE CONCLUSION

One explanation of this might be that a concentrated air attack on a small city or town seems far worse than the same-sized attack on London, which is so spread out. A possible conclusion can be drawn from the disapproval of those who have been subjected to the heaviest bombing, that the people believe air raids have been unsuccessful in breaking down British morale and, therefore, are useless as a weapon for breaking down German morale.

Estimate 50,000 British Troops Are At Iraq Stations

ANKARA, May 2.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The Turkish radio estimated tonight that Britain has at least 50,000 troops in Iraq, including two full motorized divisions.

(The number of British troops in Iraq is an official secret, but London dispatches Saturday said they were thought to total about 20,000.)

Direct Hits Are Scored In Big Raid

Heavy Attack Is Made On Scharnhorst, Gneisenau In Brest Port

By HOMER JENKS

LONDON, May 5—(BUP)—Great Britain for the first time today claimed direct hits on the 26,000-ton German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau at Brest and reported that a "great rectangle of fire" had been started by Royal Air Force attacks on the big naval base of St. Nazaire.

St. Nazaire is on the Bay of Biscay, south of Brest, and has been used as a base for German submarine and surface raider attacks on British ships in the Atlantic ocean.

Pilots of the second wave of British bombers arriving at St. Nazaire said that they saw a series of big explosions in the naval base before they added their own loads of bombs to the flaming rectangle.

Barracks also were hit at Querqueville airdrome, the air ministry communique said.

Today's War Moves

By J. W. T. MASON
British United Press Analyst

WHEN Hitler in his address yesterday declared Germany and her allies represent military power superior to any possible combination in the world, he was camouflaging the facts. Any possible combination must include naval strength as well as land power, whereas it seems apparent that the Fuehrer sought to confine a comparison of fighting efficiency to numbers of soldiers and their equipment.

He did not mention air strength and there again he glossed over one of the major conditions of the future of the war. It is probable that next year the British output of airplanes plus the American production will exceed Germany's productive capacity.

Since the Fuehrer referred to the German equipment for next year, it must be assumed that he has discarded his former conviction that Germany will be able to win the war this year. Thus, any possible combination of power against Ger-

CANADIAN PRESS WRITER MISSING ON SEA VOYAGE

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP)—Sam Robertson, Canadian Press London superintendent and war correspondent, is listed as missing as a result of enemy action while on a sea voyage, according to official word received here from London.

Internationally known as a correspondent and news service executive, Mr Robertson had visited Canada on a month's furlough in March and April.

"We are hoping that Mr. Robertson has been rescued by some ship that has not yet reached land," a government official said Sunday night. "But so far we have received no word except the announcement that he was listed as missing."

Mr. Robertson, who was returning to his post in London, had spent 15 months in England directing the

Eire Fire Brigades Disregard Neutrality To Fight Belfast Blazes After Nazi Air Attacks

By P. J. KELLY

BELFAST, Ireland, May 5.—(BUP)—Eirean fire brigades jettisoned the formalities of neutrality last night and roared across the border to help cope with a German air attack that had turned Belfast into a sea of raging flames.

Weary Eireans still were working feverishly this morning in the smoke-laden streets alongside Ulster brigades. A wave of gratitude for Eire's errand of mercy has swept the city overnight, establishing a bond of sympathy between north and south Ireland which no British or Irish statesman has been able to establish in a generation.

In addition to the fire brigade's gesture, Dublin appeared to be rushing all possible aid to stricken Belfast this morning.

Hundreds of persons whose homes in Belfast have been blasted into mounds of brick and plaster, are gathering their few remaining belongings and leaving for Eire or the north Ireland countryside.

Last night's three-hour raid exceeded in intensity the savage attack of the Tuesday after Easter when it was officially announced that 500 persons had been killed.

Churches, large stores and blocks of office buildings were reduced to smoking ruins last night. The raiders dumped thousands of explosive and incendiary bombs and the heaviest anti-aircraft barrage ever heard in Ulster fought the Germans in a moonlit sky. Several raiders were believed hit and badly damaged. The wreckage of one bomber was found this morning amid the debris of a battered working class district.

The Germans dropped many delayed action bombs, which rocked

ALLIES WILL WIN IN FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Ralston Reviews Effort Being Made By Canada In Struggle

TORONTO, May 5.—(CP)—The fight for freedom will be won "because Canada, as well as Britain and all those associated with her, will stop at nothing which can effectively be done to ensure the overthrow of Nazism," Defence Minister Ralston said today.

In an address to Rotarians at which Canadians played hosts to American brothers in Rotary, the defence minister reviewed Canada's marshalling of her power for war and called for the most united strength and the most unfaltering energy which Canadians can muster.

"I think our most dangerous enemy on this side of the Atlantic is the idea that we have plenty of time," he said.

But he believed the events of the last few weeks—United States steps for increased aid to Britain

Germans Had Naval Repair Shops On Deception Island

Blown Up Few Months Ago Antarctic Expedition Leader Reveals

By GARDNER FROST

BOSTON, May 5.—(BUP)—Germany maintained Antarctic naval repair shops at Deception Island harbor—only 600 miles from South America—until they were blown up a few months ago, it was reported when members of the United States Antarctic expedition arrived in Boston.

EXCLUSIVE

Deception Island is a volcanic formation near the South Shetland Islands, south of Cape Horn. There is a deep lake on the island which also has hot springs.

Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who was among 200 persons who greeted the returning members of his expedition aboard the motorship North Star, expressed astonishment when he heard the report.

"There's some real news for you, boys," Byrd told the reporters. "I had no idea of such activity down there."

Dr. Paul A. Siple of Erie, Pa., who had charge of the expedition's west base in Little America, told Byrd that he received his information from a "high Chilean naval officer" when the North Star stopped at a Chilean port.

"The officer told me that the shops we built there and that German explorers were in the area in 1938," Dr. Siple said. "The officer said the shops were blown up and you can draw your own conclusions as to who may have done this."

Dr. Siple said that by the time he received the report the expedition was too far from Little America to make possible any attempt at verification. He speculated that the German pocket battleship Graf Spee might have used Deception Island as a base for raiding operations in the South Atlantic before it was sunk more than a year ago.

HANSON ASKS FOR ECONOMY BY DOMINION

Tory Leader Calls Upon Government To Give Lead To People

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP)—Conservative House Leader Hanson today called on the government to give a lead to the Canadian people by cutting its peace-time expenditures to the bone and exercising the utmost possible economy.

Leading off in the budget debate Mr. Hanson expressed confidence the people would accept the sacrifices involved in the new taxes but warned the government there was widespread dissatisfaction with the way money was being spent.

"I am firm in my belief that the Canadian people will willingly undergo the trials and sacrifices that so surely lie ahead of us," he said.

EMPIRE TROOPS BREAK UP AXIS ASSAULT PLANS

CAIRO, May 5.—(AP)—Imperial forces counter-attacking the Germans and Italians at Tobruk were reported by the Middle East command today to have broken up Axis preparations for renewal of assaults on the encircled Libyan port.

Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Axis forces, which still are holding a small sector in Tobruk's outer defences, the war bulletin said.

In East Africa, the high command announced a further advance against Amba Alaji, some 280 miles northeast of Addis Ababa.

Fresh fighting has broken out in the Salum sector of the North African front, along the Egyptian-Libyan border, with losses inflicted on Axis troops and vehicles, it was announced.

TORONTO, May 5.—(CP)—The speech Dorothy Thompson, newspaper columnist, made to the International Affiliation of Sales and Advertising Clubs here last Friday night will be rebroadcast on the national network at 8:15 p.m., M.S.T., Thursday night, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation announced today.

In the speech Miss Thompson said "Hitler cannot destroy us, and he knows it."

Most Of Country's Air Force Destroyed By Britain's Bombers

Iraq Artillery Pounding Besieged British Airport At Habbaniyah Rendered "Comparatively Inactive" By R.A.F.

LONDON, May 5.—(CP)—Turkey has offered, or will offer, to mediate between Iraq and Britain, reliable reports said tonight. Informed sources in London said Britain would accept mediation contingent upon Iraq's withdrawal of forces menacing the Royal Air Force airdrome at Habbaniyah.

LONDON, May 5.—(CP)—The Ankara radio reported today that Iraq broadcasts were threatening the bombing of British residential quarters if the British Air Force bombs Baghdad, the Iraq capital.

CAIRO, May 5.—(AP)—Most of Iraq's air force "already has been destroyed," the British Middle East command said today, and Iraq artillery which had pounded the besieged British airport at Habbaniyah was "rendered comparatively inactive yesterday by our aircraft."

Reports in London said that Iraq has cut the pipeline flow of oil to the Mediterranean from the huge Mosul fields.

The British garrison at Habbaniyah is intact and has suffered "very few casualties," the communique said, and British troops remain "without interference" in occupation of the Basra area, at the head of the Persian Gulf.

(The Iraqi air force consisted of two bomber squadrons, a bomber-transport squadron, a fighter squadron and a communications squadron, besides planes attached to a training school.)

"The greater part of the Iraqi air force already has been destroyed by our air action, either while attempting to attack British camps or as a result of at-

AMERICA IS PREPARED TO FIGHT AGAIN

President Roosevelt Says Nation Will Battle For Democracy

STAUNTON, Va., May 5—(AP)—President Roosevelt declared Sunday that the American people had fought before and are "ever ready to fight again" for the existence of "Democracy in the world."

Speaking at the dedication of Woodrow Wilson's birthplace as a national shrine, Mr. Roosevelt said the First Great War president had taught "that democracy could not survive in isolation."

"We applaud his judgment and his faith," he added.

The Presbyterian manse where Wilson was born was, the President said, "a new shrine of freedom."

"FAITH IN FREEDOM"

By the act of dedication, he continued, "we are bearing true witness to the faith that is in us—a simple faith in the freedom of democracy in the world."

"It is the kind of faith for which we have fought before, for the existence of which we are ever ready to fight again."

The President expressed faith that Democracy would emerge triumphant from the "tragic conflict which the world witnesses today."

"All of recorded history," he said, "bears witness that the human race has made true advancement only as it appreciated spiritual values. Those unhappy peoples who have placed their sole reliance on the sword have inevitably perished by the sword in the end.

"Physical strength can never permanently withstand the impact of spiritual force."

STATEMENT APPLAUDED

Mr Roosevelt spoke from a small stand on the sidewalk in front of "The Manse" as a warm sun beat down upon him and his listeners.

Among those on hand to greet the President were Secretary and Mrs. Cordell Hull; the secretary of commerce, Jesse Jones; the British ambassador and Lady Halifax; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Governor

MAN IS KILLED WHILE ASLEEP AS TRUCK TIPS

Passenger's Chest Crushed As Tractor Shifts In Vehicle

His chest crushed by the flange of a tractor, that shifted in the rear of the truck in which it was being freighted on the Jasper highway, 20 miles west of Evansburg, Harry Forbes, 29, of Peers, was instantly killed in a unique accident at 11.45 p.m. Saturday.

Forbes, with two other men, Albert W. Erickson, Erskine, and Lionel Clapp, Mackay, were sleeping in the rear box of the truck, which was being driven by Victor J. Erickson, Erskine, owner of the truck.

TRUCK GOING WEST

The truck was travelling west. The tractor, of the caterpillar type, was being taken west, along with some plows, for highway work. Erickson, the driver, is said to have been employed by the department of public works. The equipment in the truck was chained to the sides of the box.

There is a slight curve in the highway where the accident occurred, and it is believed this caused the weight to shift. The truck was swept over into the left ditch. It was completely wrecked.

The sudden shifting of the gasoline tractor, caused the truck to go into the ditch and the flange of

RANCHERS SAY THEY CANNOT ACCEPT TERMS

"Would Be Ruined Financially" Says Spokesman After Meeting

MEDICINE HAT, M —(CP)—A spokesman for 50 ranchers of the 70,000-acre block of land in the Tilley East area in south-eastern Alberta, which is being transferred to the department of national defence, said Sunday "it is absolutely impossible for us to accept terms offered by provincial cabinet ministers to move off our land."

The spokesman made the statement following a meeting of the ranchers here Saturday. "We would be ruined financially," he said.

The meeting held to discuss the removal of themselves and their families from the area passed a resolution, which was made public yesterday, stating terms suggested by the Alberta government would "lead to our ruin within the space of a few months."

WILLING TO CO-OPERATE

The spokesman for the group said that "contrary to a report coming out of Edmonton, that we are out for personal gain and that we won't co-operate with those administering the removal project, the ranchers of the area are willing to co-operate — but we can't ruin ourselves."

Last week Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, who with Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, went to the area to negotiate with property owners over agreements, suggested on his return to Edmonton certain "agitators" were trying to "stir up trouble" as well as "some residents of Medicine Hat, who are hoping to get something for themselves."

Residents of Bingville endorsed a resolution which was sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Premier Aberhart last Friday, protesting over agreements made with Alberta government officials stating the terms given by the province were inadequate and the agreements be regarded as "cancelled and rendered null and void."

The meeting here Saturday passed the following resolution:

"Resolved that we ranchers of the British block area in meeting assembled, protest against the present administration by the Alberta government authorities for the removal of families from the area, in that terms suggested by the present administration would lead to our ruin within the space of a few months. As a patriotic group of Canadians anxious to aid in the war effort, we are willing to co-operate with any administration which will give us the fair valuation on our land that any group of democratic citizens might expect. We would suggest that the only fair way of dealing with the removal of persons from the Tilley East area known as the British Block area is through the medium of an impartial board, on which we have representation, working hand in hand with recognized and competent appraisers."

Transport Planes Being Sought For Middle East Use

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—A hurried roundup of transport-type civilian aircraft at President Roosevelt's request was reported in aeronautical quarters today to be directly linked with the war in the Mediterranean.

Airmen familiar with negotiations by which Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones already has acquired a substantial number of civilian planes for transfer to Great Britain predicted those considered suitable would be dispatched immediately to the Middle East.

All aircraft capable of emergency use in moving troops and weapons quickly to danger points were said to be sought by the British command to counter Nazi threats to Iraq oil fields, Egypt and other key areas in the Mediterranean theatre of war.

tack by our air forces on Iraqi bases," the communique said, adding:

"After attacking an unarmed British construction party, which was in the vicinity, Iraqi forces on May 2 occupied Rutba."

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—Iraq is reported to have cut the pipeline flow of oil to the Mediterranean from the high Mosul fields, and authoritative British sources predicted today that if Axis influences triumphed against the British in the Middle East kingdom they would thrust next at neighboring Iran, fourth greatest oil producer in the world.

Reports from Cairo indicated British troops still were holding out last night at their besieged air base at Lake Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Baghdad, and that Royal Air Force bombers had taken the offensive—striking to cripple Iraq's small air force.

The pro-German government which Premier Raschid Ali Al Gailani set up in a coup April 4 was attacked verbally, meanwhile, by the Emir Abdul Ilah, deposed regent. He declared in Palestine that he would return to restore "lawfully constituted government." The Emir urged Iraq troops to return peacefully to the posts.

WORK OF INSURGENTS

The stoppage of Iraq oil, pumped through a pipeline to Haifa in British-mandate Palestine, was said by Reuters News Agency to have been accomplished by the Iraq insurgents.

Britain's eastern Mediterranean fleet has received its principal oil supply from that line since the fall of France last June when a second line from the Mosul fields to Tripoli, in French-mandated Lebanon, was closed.

British authorities said, however, they have built up "numerous and adequate" fuel reserves in the eastern Mediterranean to continue fleet operations.

British spokesmen who predicted Axis influences might try next to tie up the oilfields of Iran, to the east, estimated Iran's army at 750,000 to 1,000,000 men but said it was poorly equipped. The country has a German colony of approximately 25,000 persons, and recently 2,000 German engineers and technicians have been reported sent there to build highways. The government nominally is neutral.

NO SIGN OF ABATING

Fighting in scattered sections of Iraq showed no signs of abating since its flare-up last Friday.

Iraq artillery shelled the British-built Habbaniyah air base at point-blank range from surrounding highlands yesterday for the third consecutive day, causing some casualties.

British officials declared the air fields there still were in use and that British bombers were keeping the shelling intermittent.

It was reported officially yesterday that the dock area, power station and airport at Basra, Baghdad's port at the head of the Persian Gulf, also were held by British forces, who drove out Iraq troops Friday by air and artillery attacks.

GAS DUMPS BOMBED

R. A. F. Middle East communiques yesterday from Cairo said gasoline dumps and magazines at Moreat airdrome, outside Baghdad, had been bombed and that 73 Iraq planes were destroyed and others possibly damaged in two air raids on the Mvoascar Rashic airdrome. Two Iraq fighters which attempted to intercept the bombers were shot down.

Reuter's dispatches last night from the Near and Middle East carried reports from Iraq sources that Iraq forces had captured the Habbaniyah base and surrounded British troops at Basra.

Travellers reaching Cairo from Iraq were quoted as saying Iraq troops took control of the Baghdad airport last Friday.

Reuter's dispatches from Bombay said the Indian press was condemning the Iraq government and declaring the outcome of developments there of grave importance to India.

Expanding last night's communique by the R.A.F. Middle East command, the air ministry news service said today that many tons of bombs were dropped yesterday on hangars, workships, offices, officers' mess sheds, buildings and aircraft at Moascar Raschid airport.

Before returning to their bases, the British fliers scattered 24,000 leaflets in Arabic over Baghdad, the news service added.

OCEAN PATROL NOT ADEQUATE WILLKIE SAYS

Declares For Convoy Protection Of War Supplies For Britain

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP) Wendell L. Willkie, charging that the United States administration's existing sea patrol "is not adequate," declared Saturday that "we have got to get the goods delivered to Great Britain."

"The rate of sinkings is so serious that we should protect our cargoes of arms and food to England," the 1940 Republican presidential nominee said in an interview.

It was reported authoritatively that Willkie had sent word to President Roosevelt that he would support him in any move the president might make to assure the delivery of American goods to Britain. Willkie himself told reporters:

PATROL NOT SUFFICIENT

"If my information is correct, the present patrol method is not adequate to prevent our products from going to the bottom of the ocean."

Replying to reporters' questions, Willkie said that if he were president he would have military, naval and air experts advise him regarding the best method of protecting shipments to Britain and then would proceed on their advice.

"I am absolutely in favor of delivering the goods," he said, "whether it be by convoy, airplane accompaniment or any other method deemed best."

At the capitol, meantime, there were indications that Congress would hear increasing demands from some of its members for American convoys.

Senator Joseph Guffey (Dem., Pennsylvania) voiced the first such plea on Thursday, and it was disclosed Saturday that Senator Claude Pepper (Dem., Florida) would express similar views in a senate speech today. Several other legislators were said to be withholding public statements of that nature because of uncertainty as to whether they might prove embarrassing to President Roosevelt.

Senator Charles Tobey (Rep., New Hampshire), author of an anti-convoy resolution, contended Guffey's statement and Pepper's projected speech were part of an administration program to pave the way for convoys.

Willkie, questioned about public reaction to his recent article in Collier's magazine advocating further help for Britain, asserted:

"I find that the people are confused and are searching earnestly, hoping that the administration will give them information and leadership.

"The people are walking in the dark and they can't find the direction in which to go until they are given the light of facts."

Then, referring to the recent resignation of Charles A. Lindbergh from the air corps and President Roosevelt's decision not to renew the army reserve commission of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Willkie said:

"I don't think it contributes to leading the people to get into personal controversies with those of a different viewpoint. I wholly disagree with Col. Lindbergh, but in words of Voltaire, 'I do not agree with a word you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.'

"The best way to dissipate any influence that Lindbergh might have is not to attack him personally, but to show the fallacy of his position.

"Likewise, no one has criticized me more of late than has Gen. Hugh Johnson, but I think it exceedingly unfortunate that the failure to reappoint him came at a time when he was critical of the administration's foreign policy and those of us who disagree with his viewpoint."

Willkie asserted that "nothing would delight Hitler more" than to see the American people "fall to the use of violent language about each other." He added:

POLICY IS RIGHT

"I am firmly convinced that our foreign policy enunciated by the administration and approved by an overwhelming majority of Congress in the enactment of the lease-lend bill, is so right that we can finally convince all Americans of its wisdom. Certainly we can if we keep the channels of public discussion free and unclogged with the bitterness of personal recrimination.

"National unity is so all-important that I do not want to see people's minds closed and diverted by inflammatory discussion and the use of personalities."

Willkie's statements were made to reporters in response to queries about a statement in his magazine article stating that this country should send Britain both war and merchant ships and should "if necessary," see that cargoes be delivered "safely to the ports of western and northern England."

The Republican candidate said he had attempted to eliminate the words "if necessary" after he had written his article, but that it was too late to change the text before publication.

South Africans Assist In Libya

CAPE TOWN, May 5.—(CP)—Prime Minister J. C. Smuts told the House of Assembly Saturday that the task the Union undertook in Ethiopia is now at or near its end, and that the Union Government consequently had agreed to the request of the British government for assistance in Egypt and Libya.

Malta Raided

VALETTA, May 5.—(CP)—Axis planes attacked Malta in two heavy overnight raids, causing damage to civilian property and a hospital. Two Junkers bombers were shot down and another was damaged.

the Skaggerak, where a convoy was attacked, the ministry said.

The R. A. F. heavily bombed Brest during the night.

Many heavy bombs were dropped in the raid, the air ministry said, and hits were observed on and very near the German warships, two key units of the Nazi fleet which had been sheltering at Brest after raids on British Atlantic commerce.

Docks on both sides of the harbor at Brest, one of France's great naval bases on the invasion coast, were hit by British bombs and large fires were started.

STRONG ATTACK

This was the 15th attack on the Brest area since the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau put in there. This, however, was the first time the air ministry had claimed direct hits on the ships, even though a pilot had been decorated recently after having been credited officially with a hit.

Communiques on previous raids had said only that hits were observed near the ships or that bombs straddled them.

"Strong forces" of bombers made the raid, the ministry said today, taking advantage of good weather on the French coast.

It was believed that the attack was one of the heaviest, if not the heaviest, since the German ships were first bombed on the night of March 30.

NO SPECIFIC CLAIMS

Today's communique did not claim any specific damage to the ships. Naval experts had long pointed out that even an armor-piercing bomb would have to be dropped from a great height to pierce the six-inch deck armor of the ships and blow out the insides. It was regarded as probable that the main damage would be to the superstructure. This, however, or even a very close miss, might result in keeping the ships in port.

Indicating that the Brest raid was on a considerable scale, the air ministry said that smaller forces attacked docks and shipping at Rotterdam, Holland; Antwerp, Belgium; and Le Havre, France.

Near Antwerp a direct hit was made on a German supply ship of about 1,500 tons, the ministry asserted.

It was added that a German patrol vessel was hit and left sinking by planes of the bomber command in "very light" sweeps by British planes yesterday.

ple along the path to ultimate victory."

Mr. Hanson said he was surprised that the Canadian National Railways deficit last year ran to $16,000,000 and demanded an explanation.

He also criticized continuance of work on the C.N.R. terminal and a reported plan to relieve traffic congestion between Moncton and Halifax which would cost $1,200,000.

The Conservative leader approved of the proposal to ask the provinces to vacate the income tax field but was critical of the Dominion's invasion of the succession duty field.

He hoped all provinces would accept the offer made to them but regretted the matter was not dealt with by agreement in advance at the recent Dominion-Provincial conference. He asked that arrangements be made to protect municipalities now drawing revenue from income tax.

A federal succession duty meant two imposts on the same property.

"I do protest against this injustice," he said. "I hope between now and next year negotiations will be opened with the provinces with a view to reaching some conclusions so that double taxation may be avoided."

He thought the five per cent National Defence Tax, coupled with unemployment insurance levies and higher living costs, would bear too heavily on working men.

and the Allies—"have given that enemy a mighty wallop."

"What we have to steel ourselves for is to strive and work just as resolutely and just as hard in systematically planning, preparing and fitting ourselves as if the enemy were at our gates," said Colonel Ralston.

FIGHT TO FINISH

A war without casualty lists seemed unreal. Canada's army, navy and air force casualties to date totalled only about 700, whereas in the last war after a year and a half of war more than 15,000 Canadians had given their lives.

"The fact we have suffered so lightly so far is no guarantee for the future," he said. "The time will come when all we can do in the way of preparation will be put to the test.

"Let me tell you all, there is nothing unreal about this war—it's a fight to the finish and Canadians need to have that said to them just as much as anybody else."

Col. Ralston reviewed the growth of Canada's armed forces since war started—the expansion of the army and the navy, and the bringing into operation of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. "The Canadian navy, which had only 15 ships when war broke out, now has over 180, and the strength of the 'silent service' has increased from 2,000 to 17,000, and will be 25,000 before the present fiscal year is out.

175,000 IN TRAINING

"Nearly 60 army mobilization and training camps are operating across the Dominion. In these camps about 175,000 soldiers of our active army are fitting themselves for service anywhere, and there are about 10,000 young men called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act for defence of Canada.

"The Royal Canadian Air Force has grown to a strength of about 50,000.

"You may not know it but many graduates of the Commonwealth air training schools are already in England to take their part in the battles of the air.

"The record is that twice as many pilots and observers have been graduated as were planned for up to this time and before the year is out we expect that these schools will have produced six times the number which the original schedule called for."

SIGNIFICANT POINTS

He spoke of the Ogdensburg agreement, the formation of the joint United States-Canadian defence board, the Hyde Park declaration, the turning over to Britain of 50 American destroyers and the lease-lend bill.

"It would only be painting the lily for me to attempt to dwell on the importance of all those history-making measures," he said. "They are striking enough in themselves, but the heartening, cheering significance of them is beyond words. They leave no doubt where the great heart of the American people is in this struggle."

Escort Selected In Event F.D.R. Makes Ottawa Trip

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP)—The Lake Superior Regiment, now quartered at Lansdowne Park have been asked to provide an escort and guard of honor in the event President Roosevelt finds it possible to pay his hoped-for visit to Ottawa this month.

It was believed in well informed circles that May 15 may be a likely date though official word that the President will accept the invitation to visit Ottawa has yet to be received.

Because of many uncertain factors surrounding the expected visit, the government has asked a committee of departmental representatives to give some preliminary consideration to a possible program.

AMERICA IS PREPARED TO FIGHT AGAIN

James H. Price of Virginia, and Senators Carter Glass and Harry Byrd of Virginia.

The throng applauded when Mr. Roosevelt put the world on notice that "we are ever ready to fight again" for a faith in Democracy."

The ceremony at the house on Coalter street, where Wilson was born in 1856, the son of a Presbyterian minister, was brief and solemn.

The president spoke of the family's ideals which put faith in spiritual values above every material consideration, and said that in these times "We see more clearly than ever before the unyielding strength of things of the spirit."

WILSON'S VISION

Then Mr. Roosevelt, who served as an assistant secretary of the navy under President Wilson, recalled the efforts of his chief to assure a permanent peace in the world. He did not mention directly the League of Nations which Wilson was instrumental in setting up, only to have his own country refuse to join.

But he said that Wilson had beheld a "vision splendid" and would be remembered as a statesman who tried to bring nearer the day of "Emancipation of conscience from power and the substitution of freedom for force in the government of the world."

That selfish men could not share Wilson's vision of a world emancipated from the shackles of force and the arbitrament of the sword, he declared, in no wise detracts from its splendor.

IDEALS OF LIBERTY

"Rather," he went on, "does the indifference of hostile contemporaries enhance the beauty of the vision which he saw and enlarge the glory of the world he sought to rebuild.

"It is good for America that this house in which Woodrow Wilson was born will be preserved for us and for many future generations. In this valley of Virginia it will remind America that his ideals of freedom were wide enough to support democracy in all the world. He taught that democracy could not survive in isolation. We applaud his judgment and his faith."

The President motored here from Kenwood, the estate, near Charlottesville, of his secretary and military aide, Maj.-Gen. E. M. Watson, where he had been a week-end guest.

Unlimited Aid Seen Result Of Speech

WASHINGTON, May, 5—(AP)—President Roosevelt's declaration that the United States people "are ever ready to fight again" for democracy was interpreted in high administration quarters today as carrying a new promise of virtually unlimited assistance to nations resisting aggression.

This view was taken by some members of the party which accompanied the president to Staunton, Va., where he made the statement yesterday in dedicating the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson as a national shrine.

In Washington, Senator Gerald Nye, (Rep., North Dakota), commented that "If the president is making a feeler for a declaration of war he will be quickly surprised to see that the people of America do not want to be involved."

Officials in the presidential party noted, on the other hand, that he did not say Americans were ready to go to war and drew a distinction between that and his actual words. In the present instance, they said, "fight" was a broad term covering strong material support of democratic nations rather than military involvement in the war.

At the capitol, it was reported Senator Claude Pepper (Dem., Florida) would make a speech today advocating war shipments to Britain, and administration leaders said they would not seek to avoid a senate showdown on a proposal by Senator Charles Tobey (Rep., New Hampshire), to put Congress on record against naval convoys of war shipments to Britain.

Democratic leader Alben Barkley predicted the proposal would be defeated overwhelmingly.

MOST BRITONS FAVOR CIVILIAN BOMBING RAIDS

The majority of those approving civilian bombing say:

"Let the Germans have a taste of it. An eye for an eye. There are no rules in war and there should be no half measures now."

Others say:

"It would end the war quickly and check the raids upon us. Morale is a military objective."

Forty-six per cent of those disapproving said:

"Don't kill women and children, it's not English. It's as bad as Hitler. Let us keep our hands clean."

From my observations in the provinces and in London, the difference in morale among the people seems striking. Where local councils are efficient and the organization of civilian defence is good, the morale of the people is high; where red tape and inefficiency abound, morale is correspondingly lower.

In areas of terrific devastation, where provisions of food, clothing and shelter for raid victims is immediately available, morale is exceedingly good. But in other regions, where much less damage has been done and local arrangements leave much to be desired, morale in many cases is lower.

Canada Strengthens Hand For Battle Of Atlantic

Substantial Additions Are Made To Dominion's Naval Strength

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, May 5—Canada has greatly strengthened its hand in the momentous battle of the Atlantic now raging through addition to naval strength of ships built during the winter in shipyards on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River and recently released by the spring break-up of ice for movement down to the Atlantic coast where Canada stands guard on the western end of Britain's ocean life line.

The extent to which the opening of Great Lakes navigation has weighted the balance of naval defence, has received no widespread publicity, but guarded comment obtained from naval headquarters indicated today the welcome given by high naval circles to substantial additions to the navy of new ships built during the winter in ice-locked yards. Great importance is seen in these additions at the present time.

VITAL FACTOR

The Great Lakes, as President Roosevelt made clear in recent discussions of the St. Lawrence seaway project, represent a vital factor in continental defence strategy. Though details are hidden in war censorship, the great inland waterway is already proving itself in this war. Use of Great Lakes shipping to relieve pressure on Atlantic coastal facilities was announced Friday. The addition of naval construction to existing navy strength will permit stronger patrols of Atlantic coastal waters, providing opportunities for naval volunteers who have trained all winter hoping for a chance to go to sea.

Additions of ships to the Canadian navy are not reported. It may be several months before a corvette or mine sweeper is actually in commission after it is launched. Unofficially it is estimated that up to 20 per cent of the current naval construction program became available at one stroke this spring when the ice freed shipping on the Great Lakes.

SUBSTANTIAL LAUNCHINGS

So far orders have been placed for 80 corvettes and 60 mine-sweepers, and of the total nearly 80 have been launched. During April a substantial rate of launching new navy vessels was reported.

The fact that Canada's navy construction program attained delivery rates understood to be very striking this spring coincides with several effective steps taken by President Roosevelt to aid Britain in the Battle of the Atlantic. Latest figures given officially shows that the strength of the Canadian navy has increased from 1,774 at the outbreak of war to 17,451 officers and men, from 15 ships to about 200 ships, with the figure expected to be doubled within a year.

the freighted machine passed over Forbes' chest.

The accident occurred one mile west of Leaman, 20 miles west of Evansburg, and some 80 miles west of Edmonton on the Edmonton-Jasper highway.

There were six persons in the truck. In the front with the driver was his wife and Noles Erickson, an uncle. In the rear, with the tractor, were the deceased Harry Forbes, Clapp and Albert W. Erickson.

It is presumed that the sleeping men did not have time to jump when the tractor suddenly shifted.

According to reports to the Edmonton headquarters of the R. C. M. P. from Const. Foster of the Evansburg detachment, the box was not securely held to the truck, and the truck, a 1½-ton model, was much too light to sustain the weight of the heavy tractor.

INQUEST MONDAY

The coroner at Evansburg was notified by police and an inquest is being held Monday at Evansburg, where the body of Forbes was taken.

Inquest into the death of Forbes opened Monday morning in Evansburg, and was continuing in the afternoon. Dr. Chisholm of Evansburg, coroner, is presiding.

HITLER ONCE MORE DEFIES DEMOCRACIES

Boasts Of Strength In Speech To Reichstag—Attacks Churchill

By JACK FLEISCHER

BERLIN, May 5. — (BUP) — Adolf Hitler left the German people—and Germany's enemies—in ignorance of his next war moves today.

In his fourth speech to the Nazi Reichstag since the war started, he reviewed the Balkan campaign and roused cheers with his boast that "nothing is impossible to the German soldier".

Hitler referred to "the democratic agitators of a country to which the German people has never done any harm," presumably the United States, and said their fear that Germany intended to do harm to that country "is nothing but an absurd lie."

NO VICTORY PROMISE

The Nazi dictator assured his uniformed Reichstag auditors that he looked into the future "with perfect tranquillity and the greatest confidence."

He said that "the German Reich and its allies represent in military and economic and, above all, moral respects, a force which is superior to any possible coalition in the world."

But what interested diplomats was that whereas in recent speeches he had flatly promised Germany a definite victory over Great Britain this year, in his speech last night Hitler promised the army better weapons next year.

(In his New Year proclamation to the armed forces, Hitler said: "The year 1941 will bring the consummation of the greatest victory in our history." He made similar speeches on January 30 and March 16.)

It was not regarded as surprising that Hitler did not go into detail on foreign and military policies; he was reporting on the Balkan campaign.

NO CLUE TO PLANS

But neutral diplomatic observers were disappointed that his speech contained no clue to his next moves.

Also they expressed interest in his failure to reaffirm his statements that he was confident of winning the war this year. Some said also that, though there was nothing to indicate any doubt in his mind regarding the outcome of the war, his speech lacked the resounding ring he had attained in his speeches of the last year.

They asked whether Hitler's promise of better weapons next year meant that he had already given up hope of winning this year; whether it meant that no invasion of Great Britain would be attempted within the calculable future.

German informants cautioned against too much interpretation along this line. They claimed that Hitler still possesses the initiative and always counted on the element of surprise.

Germans said also that it might be significant that in this speech Hitler did not repeat the peace offers he had made in previous speeches.

A considerable portion of his speech was devoted to a bitter attack on Prime Minister Churchill, whom he termed "the most bloodthirsty amateur strategist history has ever known."

Peace River Has Heavy Rainfall: Wheat Is Seeded

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

PEACE RIVER, May 5.—Farming operations were brought to a standstill and no one seems to mind as the week-end furnished a deluge of water and the wather still remains cloudy with intermittend showers. Most of the wheat is in the ground. In fact, some of it is above ground, but coarse grains seeding had only started, two to three weeks earlier than is customary.

With the ground in splendid condition and still able to hold more moisture, coarse grain seeding will get a real break for quick growth as soon as conditions permit.

A flash of lightning may last only one ten-millionth of a second.

Why Use A "Sissy" Laxative?

Chronic constipation has to do with the colon or large intestine. Unless the large bowel is thoroughly emptied from time to time you become a victim of chronic constipation and poisoning of the system which may result in colitis or other serious disease.

Mild or "sissy" laxatives merely cause a movement of the bowels without effecting a thorough cleaning out of the colon or large bowel. For this reason you are misled into thinking that you are doing all you can to overcome a constipated and poisoned condition of the system.

Those who know Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills appreciate the value of a real medicine which not only effects a thorough cleansing of the colon or large bowel but also arouses the liver and kidneys to activity in filtering poisons from the blood.

Once you have proven the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will never return to the use of "sissy" laxatives. Keep regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills once or twice a week.

OLIVE OIL THE BIG ITEM

ade or crippled by German occupation, and the similar figure on scrap steel was 5,162,000 of a total of 6,040,000 quintals imported.

Of a total of 14,742,000 quintals of crude oil imported, 2,363,000 quintals came from the British and French empires and 11,324,000 quintals from regions now intercepted by British naval strength.

● Italy Stocked Very Little

In the first year of the war and before her own entry, Italy stocked very little of these vital imports.

The British kept a keen eye on that and Italy was short of gold.

Consequently, it is easy to understand why so many Italian factories are idle today.

The Germans want textiles, but the splendid factories around Milan are working at half capacity, I found in visits there, because there is very little cotton. Wool is already entirely exhausted, I understand.

This, in a textile industry so well organized technically that it was able with governmental subsidies to drive companies like duPont out of the Mexican rayon market.

The aircraft factories, as I have already written, are only making parts and assembling planes. The great steel works at Terni are cutting down to half capacity, I understand, while there were unconfirmed reports as I left Rome that the vast Fiat works which kept Turin alive were virtually shutting down.

German policy, in face of the problem of Italian collapse, has led to a great deal more than the entry of German managers into Italian factories and German capitalists into control of industrial shares.

With a disdain for individual rights equalled only in Communist Russia, Hitler has drafted skilled Italian labor for service in German factories, which more than anything else has brought a shutdown of factories in many parts of Italy with resultant economic hardship.

In the last year Hitler had already taken 50,000 agricultural and 60,000 industrial workers from Italy.

In the first week of the effective occupation of Italy by Germany at the turn of the year, Hitler called for 315,000 industrial workers.

They are telling their wives and children good-by for indeterminate periods and going off in sealed trains for unknown destinations.

A laborer only knows that to refuse means to go to prison.

This is what Hitler demanded through his economic lieutenant, Dr. Karl Clodius.

In return he continues to ship Italy a million tons of coal a month and promises to double the shipments of iron and steel.

And well Hitler may, for the Italian factories will now be German-controlled, in part German-owned and wholly geared to German needs.

● Poor Facing Starvation

A shortage of raw material because of the blockade, and German control of Italian factories because of that shortage have been inevitable.

It has also been pretty plain that Germany would drain Italy of such stuff as the Fascists could spare—flax, fruits, vegetables, sulphur, mercury.

But few observers in Italy, and certainly not many persons in the Italian government, expected the Germans to bring an actual food shortage.

Italy had been working for years toward autarchy in food, with "the battle of the wheat" and the like, and should have proved self-sufficient.

Actually there are severe shortages with a resulting upward zoom of prices.

The poorer classes are face to face with starvation.

The bottom third of the Italian public has lived on olive oil and a mixture of spaghetti and noodles with tomatoes and string beans.

The oil and spaghetti are now rationed under strict German control and the individual is allowed each month what he used to consume in a week.

The staple dish of the poor was a meatless soup made of olive oil and scraps. The poor today are trying to make this soup without oil.

All this means slow starvation for them.

● End of Line—Nothing

Nothing is sadder than the long lines of housewives waiting for their rations of olive oil.

More often than not, the available supply is exhausted by the time a woman who has stood in line for two hours finally reaches the store counter.

And generally by the time the housewife has got her half-pint bottle of rancid olive oil, which now serves for a week's ration, other lines waiting for spaghetti or charcoal have exhausted those supplies.

Without charcoal the poor can neither warm themselves, cook a hot meal nor boil water.

There is no sound reason for the shortage of olive oil except that the Germans need fats for human consumption, for explosives and for the lubrication of bombsights, rangefinders and the like.

The fact that the Italian poorer classes cannot live without olive oil and have no substitute for it means nothing to the Germans.

Italy did import olive oil—419,000 quintals in 1938—but of this total all but 36,000 quintals was re-exported after refinement. These importations were over and above the needs of the Italian public.

● Nazis Know The Pitfall

In a mere matter of months, consequently, the Germans have left the Italians feeling as if locusts had swept across the peninsula.

Berlin itself has realized that if Italy is still to be treated as an ally, instead of an occupied and enemy land, there must be some let-up.

Dr. Clodius said recently in Rome: "It has become politically necessary to take less from Italy. Unless we want sabotage and shooting in the streets we must even do something to improve Italy's situation."

He proposed to send Italy certain foodstuffs from Hungary and Rumania.

That will mean more bread and meat, but the lowest third of the Italian public can afford to eat neither.

Germany means to continue the drain of olive oil and tomatoes. If this continues, sheer starvation for thousands in Italy is inescapable.

In tomorrow's article, the last of John T. Whitaker's series, he tells how the Germans are preparing long lists of Italians whose patriotism merits the hostile attention of the Nazi secret police.

EIREAN FIRE BRIGADES FIGHT BELFAST FIRES

the city with explosions this morning.

An early morning communique said, "last night enemy aircraft delivered a heavy attack on the Belfast area, during which considerable damage was done to industrial and residential property. A number of fires was started. It is feared that casualties will be heavy. Further details will be made known later in the day."

Western Ports Are Furiously Attacked

By HARRY L. PERCY

LONDON, May 5—(BUP)—German bombers furiously attacked the western ports, terminals of the life line from America last night.

Belfast had its worst raid of the war, Liverpool and the Merseyside area were raided for the fourth night in succession.

Seven more German bombers were shot down, making the total 23 in two nights.

TEMPO INCREASING

The battle of Britain, merging into the much greater battle of the Atlantic, was increasing in tempo with the waxing of the May moon, which reached first quarter last night. Small formations of German Messerschmitt fighters, flying at 20,000 feet, had crossed the southeast coast at intervals all day yesterday, dropping no bombs, apparently doing reconnaissance work and testing the defences in preparation for massed assaults such as those of last summer. Warm, sunny weather, the best since last summer, prevailed over the straits.

American-made Douglas DB-7 night fighters had become a new factor in the battle. They were flying to France and engaging the Germans over their own airports.

It was learned that the Douglas plane which shot down two German planes over France last week had brought down a Junkers-88, the newest type of German plane, Saturday night, contributing to the total of 16 German planes bagged—the largest for any one night of the war.

Last night's raid on Liverpool and the Merseyside was said to have been lighter than Saturday night's which created scenes of decolation. A dispatch from Liverpool said a pall of smoke hung in the sky and that whole streets of shops and houses had been blasted in the dusk to dawn attack of Saturday night. Rescuers poked through heaps of debris, searching for bodies.

Food-laden trucks and mobile canteens moved through the ruins, feeding hundreds of homeless. Churches, schools, public buildings, including several libraries, were destroyed or damaged. The casualty list was growing as more bodies, including those of firemen, were uncovered.

A hospital housing 400 patients suffered a direct hit and many were trapped there. Ambulance drivers in the hospital rest room were killed. Gangs of workmen were repairing Liverpool's interrupted gas and electrical services.

Belfast got a three and a half hour pounding last night. Delayed action bomb explosions were still rocking the city this morning. Casualties were "feared to be heavy."

NO ALARM IN LONDON

A northwest British town also was attacked for several hours but casualties and damage there were said to have been comparatively light.

Londoners heard occasion, desultory gunfire but the city had no alarms last night.

Of the 23 raiders brought down in two nights, British fighters were credited with 19, anti-aircraft gunners with three, and the balloon barrage with one.

MANY FACTORS FAVOR ALLIES ADMIRALS SAY

U.S. Students Of Naval, Military Affairs Analyze War Situation

NEW YORK, May 5—(AP)—An analysis of the war situation by 17 "students of naval and military affairs and world politics," made public Sunday, said factors of fundamental importance still operate in favor of the Allies and "there is no warrant for presupposing a German victory."

Signers included four retired admirals of the United States navy, Admirals William V. Pratt and Wm. H. Standley, formerly chiefs of naval operations; Vice-Admiral Wm. L. Rodgers, formerly president of the Naval War college, and Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, formerly commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet.

FACTS SUMMARIZED

The analysis, summarized in a broadcast by Major George Fielding Eliot, military analyst for the New York Herald-Tribune, and one of the signers, included the "following facts":

"1—By reason of British sea power, Germany is denied access to the essential resources of the non-European world, both in industrial production and in raw materials. . . .

"2—The industrial plants of Germany are within reach of the Royal Air Force, whereas Britain . . . can draw upon the enormous industrial plants of the United States and the Dominions, which are safe from air attack. . . .

"3—If the war becomes one of attrition and exhaustion, the Axis powers will be at a serious disadvantage as compared with the British Empire and the United States.

"4—The essential element of British survival and ultimate victory, therefore, is the maintenance of a sufficient flow of shipping across the Atlantic.

AMERICAN AID

"5—American naval and air forces now possess the necessary striking force, as in 1917, to equalize and perhaps turn to our definite advantage the struggle now waging along the convoy routes.

"6—Adequate American production of aircraft and their safe delivery to Britain would alter this situation (possible serious impairment of British ability and will to fight on because of German bombardments) in at least two fundamental respects: It would make possible effective counter-measures and it would raise British morale.

"7—If we so will, we can produce for Britain and for ourselves motorized and armored equipment which will be superior to any thus far utilized in the war.

"8—It is imperative that we take account of moral factors as being an inherent part of the military potential. (A consideration of "imponderables" and a non-defeatist attitude.)

flow of news of the Battle of Britain to Canadian newspapers and acting as war correspondent with the Canadian forces before he returned to Canada for his vacation.

He went to Britain in December, 1939, with the second contingent of Canadian troops on his appointment as acting London superintendent and war correspondent. He was named to succeed Edwin S. Johnson as London superintendent last Nov. 1.

Robertson, at 35 a brilliant writer and resourceful, energetic executive after 22 years in the CP's service, ably directed the eight-man CP London staff during months of Nazi bombing which shook the CP office building last Sept. 23 and destroyed it by fire on Dec. 29. The service under his direction was scarcely interrupted and the staff operated from a new Fleet street office within a few hours.

He flew to France with the late Hon. Norman Rogers, then Canadian defence minister, in the spring of 1940 and accompanied the minister on a tour of the front line. Later he spent several weeks reporting the activities of the 1st Canadian Division and wrote of the first mass bombing raids on Britain last July from "Hell's Corner" on the cliffs of Dover.

Text Of Churchill's Address To Polish People

LONDON, May 5.—(CP) — The text of Prime Minister Churchill's address to the Polish people Saturday follows:

Tonight I am speaking to the Polish people all over the world. This is the 150th anniversary of the adoption by your parliament of the constitution. You are right to keep this day as a national holiday because your constitution of 1791 was a pattern when it was framed of enlightened political thought.

Your neighbors in those by-gone days saw in the adoption of this system the beginning of the regeneration of Poland. They hastened to perpetrate the partition of your country before the Polish nation could consolidate its position. The same tragedy, the same crime, was repeated in 1939.

NOTABLE PROGRESS

The Germans became alarmed at the success achieved by the Polish nation in setting its house in order. They saw that their aggressive designs would be thwarted by the growth of a strong, independent Polish state. At the time of the brutal German attack, in September, 1939, your country had, in the face of tremendous difficulties, achieved notable progress during the 20 years of its revived national existence. To complete this work of national reconstruction you needed and you hoped for a similar period of peaceful development.

When the call came, Poland did not hesitate; she did not hesitate to risk all the progress she had made rather than compromise her national honor, and she showed in the spontaneous response of her sons and daughters that spirit of national unity and self-sacrifice which has maintained her among the great nations of Europe.

With all her trials and tribulations, I know from talks I have had with Poles who are in this country, how magnificently the mass of the Polish nation outside answered the appeal to duty in the hour of need.

I have been deeply moved by what I heard of the inhabitants of Warsaw during the three weeks of the siege and of their continued resistance to the alien oppressor who now occupies their city. We in this country, who are conscious that our strength is built on the broad masses of the British nation, appreciate and admire the Polish nation for its noble attitude since the outbreak of the war.

UPHOLD TRADITIONS

Mainly for geographical reasons, personal contacts between our two peoples were restricted in the past, and fighting as we are at opposite ends of Europe against our common foe, this war has not yet provided an opportunity for such personal contact of any large scale between you and my own countrymen.

The fortunes of war have, however, brought to these shores your president, your government, and many thousands of brave Polish soldiers, airmen, sailors and merchant seamen. Their bearing has won them universal admiration in this country and cast further lustre, if that were possible, upon the proud, heroic traditions of Poland.

It has been my privilege to come to know your prime minister and commander-in-chief, Gen. Sikorski, whose leadership, energy and unfaltering confidence is a source of great encouragement for all who meet him.

I have visited your soldiers in Scotland while they were waiting to repel the invader and while they are longing in their hearts, above all, to carry back the flag of freedom to their fellow countrymen at home.

I have seen your pilots who have by their prowess played a glorious part in the repulse of the German air hordes.

SAILORS EARN RESPECT

Meanwhile your sailors have been earning the respect and high regard of their comrades in the Royal Navy and Merchant Marine with whom they are sharing the task of maintaining those contacts with America and with the outside world through which will come the liberation of your country.

The presence here of your government and armed forces has enabled us to get to know each other better and to build a foundation for Anglo-Polish relations after our common victory and the restoration of your freedom.

Our thoughts go out tonight, not only to those valient exiled Poles whom we have learned to like and respect in the British islands, and who stand armed in the ranks of the armies of liberation, but even more to those who are gripped at home in the merciless oppression of the Hun.

All over Europe races and states, whose culture and history made them a part of the general life of Christendom in centuries when the Prussians were no better than a barbarous tribe, and the German empire no more than an agglomeration of pumper nickel principalities, are now prostrate under the dark, cruel yoke of Hitler and his Nazi gang.

GREAT ATROCITIES

Every week his firing parties are busy in a dozen lands. Monday he shoots Dutchmen; Tuesday, Norwegians; Wednesday, French or Belgians stand against the wall. Thursday it is the Czechs who must suffer, and now there are the Serbs and the Greeks to fill his repulsive bill of execution. But always, all the days, there are the Poles.

The atrocities committed by Hitler on the Poles, the ravishing of their country, the scattering of their homes, the affronts to their religion, the enslavement of their manpower, exceed in severity and in scale the villainies perpetrated by Hitler in any other conquered land. It is to you, Poles in Poland, who bear the full brunt of the Nazi oppression, at once pitiless and venal, that the hearts of the British and the American democracies go out in a full and generous tide.

We send you our message of hope and encouragement tonight, knowing that the Poles will never despair and that the soul of Poland will remain unconquerable. This war against the mechanized barbarians, who, slave-hearted themselves, are fitted only to carry their curse to others, this war will be long and hard, but the end is sure.

The end will reward all toil, all disappointments, all suffering by those who faithfully serve the cause of European and world freedom.

A day will dawn, perhaps sooner than we now have a right to hope, when the insane attempt to found a Prussian domination on racial hatred, on the armored vehicle, on the secret police, on the alien overseers, and on still more filthy quislings, will pass like a monstrous dream, and in that morning of hope and freedom not only the embattled and at last well-armed democracies, but all that is noble and fearless in the new world as well as the old will salute the rise of Poland to be a nation once again.

POLES' STAND IS COMMENDED BY CHURCHILL

Germany's "Brutal Attack" Due To Fear Of Nation's Success

LONDON, May 5.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the Polish people in a special broadcast Saturday that Germany's "brutal attack" on Poland in 1939 resulted from the German alarm at the success of the Polish nation.

Commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Polish constitution, Mr. Churchill spoke to Polies "all around the world."

Mr. Churchill praised the Polish people for their stand against the Nazi war machine and said that because of geographical and other reasons little personal contact between the Poles and British had been possible in the conduct of the war.

He had met high Polish officials now in England, he said, and he gave high praise to them and to the men of Poland now fighting side by side with Britain on land, in the air and on the sea.

He spoke of Hitler and German leaders with utmost scorn, listed the countries thus far conquered by the Nazi oppression and said his message "of hope and encouragement" was sent to these people to make them know the war would end all suffering.

Mr. Churchill acknowledged the task might be long, but he said the Polish nation would rise again.

HARVARD HEAD CALLS ON U.S. TO FIGHT NOW

Dr. J. B. Conant Says the Time For Action Has Arrived

BOSTON, May 5.—(AP)—President James B. Conant of Harvard University called Sunday for the United States to "fight now" with Britain against the Axis, declaring "the hour for action has clearly struck."

Recently returned from England, Dr. Conant declared in a nation-wide broadcast:

"Our best hope of avoiding later battle against desperate odds is to become a naval belligerent now. It is not too late. But the hour for action has clearly struck. I believe the nation is ready to join the fight for freedom."

Conant said that the belief of "some intelligent" persons in the United States that the war may be ended by a "negotiated peace" was "utterly fantastic" to anyone who lately has been in Britain.

He returned from London in mid-April after about two months there as head of a three-man group named to "exchange scientific information vital to the United States and Great Britain."

At the outset of his speech, the Harvard president said he was speaking as a private citizen and was expressing "only my own personal views."

He said it seemed inevitable that "unless we are willing to yield the control of this hemisphere to the Axis powers, this country must sooner or later fight," and added:

"FIGHT NOW"

"If we would preserve our freedom, the question before us is not: 'shall America fight?' the question before us is: 'When shall America fight?' "I believe we should fight now."

He said the blockade by the German U-boats, raiders and air force has been all too effective, "more damaging perhaps than we have yet been told."

Anticipating a reply from "some defeatists," Dr. Conant said that Great Britain won the great air battles of last fall "because of technical superiority" and added:

"There is every reason to believe this technical advantage can be maintained . . . without control of the seas, and helpless in the air, Germany will face defeat . . . whether we fight tomorrow or on a later day, we shall before long close our ranks and fight to win."

HEAVY RAINS AT WEEK-END DOUSE FOREST BLAZES

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, May 5—(CP)—Heavy rains during Saturday and Sunday brought under control forest fires which had been raging here for more than a week. All main crews were in town leaving only a skeleton crew in the south and west areas where brush is said to be still smoldering.

The forestry superintendent, J. R. Hall, said the fire hazard was passed.

While surrounding districts were heavily soaked there was little rain fell in town and residents can now see the mountains for the first time in a week. The smoke has all cleared away.

The Chedderville school, reported in danger Saturday, is now safe and the fire in that area is practically extinguished.

many will have to take into consideration next year as well as the present annual period in estimating the trend of hostilities.

SHOWS WEAKNESS

Apart from any comparison of air strength, however, which might be open to German argument, it is on the naval issue that Hitler's claim of fighting superiority shows fundamental weakness. If the Fuehrer believed the battle of the Atlantic surely would be won this year, then there would have been no need for him to have puzzled the German people's memory by referring to preparations for improving equipment for next year.

If the British can resist German attacks on Atlantic shipping sufficiently for the rest of the present year, there is little reason to believe they will lose the Battle of the Atlantic. By next year American output of ships added to the productivity of British yards, should be able to take adequate care of replacements, especially since the convoy system is likely to be improved before next winter.

There are two ways of winning a war. One is by invading an enemy country and immobilizing its fighting power, thereby forcing capitulation. That is how France was defeated. The other way is by the slower process of exhausting the enemy through economic strangulation and destruction of civilian morale. This second depends primarily on naval power.

DECISIVE FACTOR

Exhaustion was the cause of the defeat of the Central powers in the last war, due above all else to the Allies' blockade which cut the enemy off from the rest of the world. In the great, decisive wars of history, sea power has almost invariably been the decisive factor.

It was so in the Spanish-American war as in the American civil war, no less than in the last war. Hitler avoided referring to sea power in his address, failing to give the German people any promise about the Battle of the Atlantic.

Britain's naval superiority marks the weakness of the Fuehrer's position as a world conqueror. Without calculating Britain's great superiority at sea and without remembering how past history shows the power of blockade to exhaust an enemy in a long war, it is not difficult to visualize the victorious possibilities of the German army.

But, there is no reason to believe land fighting will determine the outcome of the present war. It is as hard to comprehend how Germany can be invaded as to imagine a successful invasion of Great Britain.

WAR OF EXHAUSTION

The war, as it seems now, will be long and that means a war of exhaustion, with naval strength inexorably showing its increasing power.

Europe blockaded by the British fleet is not self-supporting. As long as the sea lanes leading to Britain from the rest of the world are kept open, Great Britain will remain self-supporting. Here is the fundamental issue which Hitler evaded in declaring Germany and her Allies are superior to any possible world combination.

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

HITLER'S speech of world defiance hints strongly that Der Fuehrer has come around to the view that this is destined to be a long struggle. What he failed to say was as significant as what he said.

Reporting to the German Reichstag on another victory he omitted any prediction of an early peace which he protested again "God knows I wanted."

With virtually all continental Europe subdued, Hitler saw fit, too, to omit any timetable for realization of the Nazis' new order.

Only last Dec. 3 by contrast, he proclaimed to his fighting forces that "1941 will bring completion of the greatest victory in our history." To the Reichstag he predicted merely that 1941 "will go into history as the greatest year of our revolution."

It could be that the essential truth of an old military saying is beginning to impress itself on Hitler—"You can do almost anything with a bayonet except sit on it."

Hitler gave few clues to Germany's future course of action.

The intent was made clear, however, to woo the Turks, to try to wean the Greeks from loyalty to Great Britain, and to give "eternal peace" to the Balkans by incorporating southeast Europe into the Third Reich's economic and political system.

First hand reports from American observers as well as British reports conflict with Hitler's claim that the German army lost only a few more than 1,000 officers and men killed in the Balkans and that plane losses were relatively negligible.

Neutral authorities have estimated that some 40 Nazi divisions were employed in the Balkan campaign, out of 260 or so under arms, rather than the equivalent of only 21.

Altogether, Hitler's laatest speech was calculated to impress nations that still stand in the path of Axis world domination by helping to foster the feeling of Nazi invincibility.

STUDENTS ARE NOW TRAINING AS SOLDIERS

Cadets Given Practice In Command—Outdoor Life Enjoyed

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CAMP SARCEE, May 5.—Bright and early Saturday morning, at 6:00 a.m. to be exact, nearly 800 University of Alberta students started in on the first day of their two-weeks training period at Sarcee camp southwest of Calgary.

More than 500 of the unit left Edmonton early Friday in a special troop train. Arriving in Calgary at 12 noon, the members immediately started the seven-mile march to Sarcee.

Just a trifle leg-weary after the trek out from Calgary, all members spent the remainder of Friday taking a medical inspection, receiving blankets and other camp equipment. The entire unit ate its first camp meal Friday evening, and to the tired Varsity students "it was good, with plenty of it".

GETTING IDEA

This 6 a.m. rising business is going to be tough, if not novel to most members of the unit, as it is combined with a twenty minute session of physical training. But the entire daily program is worked out on the basis of making soldiers out of students, and the students are fast realizing that fact.

First night under canvas proved invigorating to say the least to most of the unit. The sudden downpour which greeted the cadets following their arrival left the ground cold and damp, but under plenty of blankets the prospective officers enjoyed a refreshing sleep following their hectic first day.

Main object of instruction given at camp is to assure that every individual is given every opportunity to bring himself to the highest standard possible as an instructor. Parades have been organized so that each cadet is allotted the maximum time available for individual practice in command.

Parades Saturday gave the C.O.T.C. members preliminary instruction in all phases of their camp training. Saturday night the university students enjoyed their first "leave" from camp. All Sunday morning was given over to training, with the afternoon and evening free.

TORONTO MEN

Two members of the University of Toronto contingent of the C.O.T.C., both residents of Calgary, are attached to the U. of A. group now in camp at Sarcee. They are Cadet Herb Agnew and Cpl. Jack Nazar, both sophomores at the U. of T. Toronto's camp is scheduled for the beginning of June at Niagara-on-the-Lake in Ontario, and the two Albertans were attached to the U. of A. contingent to enable them to get in their training while at home for the summer recess.

Lieut-Col. P. S. Warren, officer commanding the Alberta unit of the C.O.T.C., is in charge of the camp at Sarcee.

$20,000 Loss In Elevator Blaze At Vimy Saturday

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

VIMY, Alta., May 5.—Total of 35,000 bushels of wheat were destroyed Saturday when the United Grain Growers elevator here was levelled by fire. The building was struck by lightning about 10:15 p.m. Friday and the blaze was first discovered at about 2 a.m. Saturday. C. P. Chevalier, agent, said he believed the damage would run about $20,000. No casualties were reported in the blaze which was fanned by a northeast wind. The fire was extinguished by 4 a.m. Saturday.

HOW LONG DOES IT TAKE YOU TO EAT?

In these busy days, many of us have to satisfy our hunger with a sandwich, often bolted hurriedly. We know we're playing fast and loose with our insides, but the job must take first place. Irregular meals, irregular sleep, and new ways of living are all causes of constipation.

How to Get Gentle Relief

Constipation, as you know, is caused mainly by the disappearance of moisture from the large intestine. Therefore, that moisture must return. This is done by the action of the several mineral salts which are present in Kruschen. At the same time Kruschen, by its diuretic action helps to flush the kidneys, thus ridding your bloodstream of its accumulated toxic poisons.

It stands to reason that the size of dose for relieving constipation depends on the individual. But once this initial constipation has been relieved, a small daily dose—just enough to cover a dime—will help to keep you regular, and cheerful. Start today to remedy the mischief wrought by irregular meals and hours. You can get Kruschen from any druggist—25c, 45c and 75c.

The Usual Reaction

The defeat in the Balkans, and the losses suffered there by Australian forces, reacted at once in a marked increase of enlistments in Australia—where, as in Canada, enlistment for oversea service is on a voluntary basis.

There is nothing unusual in this. In the former great war men flocked to recruiting offices in Canada whenever news came that a reverse had been sustained. The rule probably holds in every country, it certainly holds in all British countries, that men offer most readily when they think they are needed. The converse is also true—volunteering slumps when there is no apparent reason for heavy enlistments. Why wouldn't it?

Canadians have not been joining up for oversea service in numbers as large as required. Mainly because Canadian troops oversea have not been suffering heavy casualties. Had it been known that their ranks were thinning and replacements needed, the recruiting record would be different. Men do not enlist for oversea just to get on the pay-roll, nor to spend indefinite time in training camps in Canada.

The Fight For Bases

Plymouth is one of the bases from which warships and planes have to operate in the effort to prevent Allied and neutral merchant vessels being destroyed off the coast of Ireland. This no doubt accounts for the savagery with which it has been bombed night after night, until it has been more nearly wiped out than any other city in Britain. If Plymouth can be made useless as a base for the protective air and water craft, the difficulty of keeping up shipping defence operations will be increased, and the opportunities of the sea-raiders correspondingly bettered.

But this phase of the Battle of the Atlantic is not one-sided by any means. While the Nazi bombers have been pounding Plymouth, the R.A.F. have been pounding Brest. If the facts were known the latter may now be as badly damaged militarily as the former. And Brest and the adjacent ports are as essential to the commerce destroyers as Plymouth is to the defenders. If, as there is reason to believe, the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are now little more than wrecks in the Brest harbor, their destruction may count for as much in the shipping war as the battering of Plymouth.

When to the damage done at Brest and other French ports is added the destruction of submarine yards and other works at Kiel, the land phase of the Battle of the Atlantic is not going badly.

One Job Done—Another In Hand

Lord Beaverbrook has been elevated to the post of second in command in Britain's cabinet, and put in direct charge of shipping and transport. This means that he has done a good job in the airplane department and built up an organization which can be depended upon to keep the planes coming off the assembly lines at top speed. Had he fallen down he would have been dropped. If the production machinery had not been got already into smooth working order, he would not be shifted.

The new task Beaverbrook is taking on is only second in importance to that he has accomplished, if it is even second. Ships must be kept arriving and leaving British ports regularly, to the number of three to four hundred per day. To maintain this rate involves other problems than that of how many ships can be secured for the service.

There is, for instance, the question of how much time is taken to unload a ship after it reaches port and get it ready to sail again. The number of trips per ship is as important, within limits, as the number of ships. There have been complaints that the "turn around" time in British ports was too long. It has even been claimed that by speedier cargo-handling methods a ship might make three trips in the time it now takes to make two.

Such problems as that will be right in Beaverbrook's line. Even those critics in the House of Commons who complained a while ago that his manners were brusque admitted that he "got things done." And on "getting things done" in the shipping and transport department, depend the safety of Britain and the fate of world democracy.

Reproof From Turkey

Turkish newspapers say the British countries did not send as large a force to Greece as they should have sent. They think a half million men should have been despatched from Britain, with of course the enormous amount of equipment of all sorts that such a force would require and without which it would be a total loss. Prime Minister Churchill is told he must look "beyond his own island," and disperse the garrison troops there in order to defend countries to whom Britain has pledged help—obviously meaning Turkey in particular.

This admonitory criticism has a strong Axis flavor. The course recommended is precisely the course Herr Hitler would like Britain to adopt. If Churchill would only oblige by scattering the forces now in Britain to remote theatres, the Fuehrer's task of conquering the island would be simplified. Not only simplified but translated from an impossible project into one entirely practicable. Nothing could suit his purpose better, and the drive through the Balkans no doubt had as one object the drawing away of a large part of the army that now holds Britain against invasion.

This advice from the Turkish press does not sound any better when it is recalled that Turkey did not send one man, tank, gun or plane to help the Greeks. This, despite all the gesticulating of the past six months, the existence of a Turkish army probably as large as all the forces engaged in the fighting in Greece, and the knowledge that if Greece should fall Turkey would be next in line for attack or surrender. At the least calculation these critics have failed to sufficiently consider how far they are warranted in blaming countries thousands of miles away—some of them on the other side of the globe—for not having done more than they could safely do to help a neighbor of Turkey for whom Turkey did exactly nothing at all.

But the tone of the criticism suggests a good deal more than this. It suggests that the Turkish papers may have begun to set up an alibi in advance, in case Ankara should decide to side-step its mutual-assistance pact with Britain.

Nazi planes have showered Eire with leaflets warning people there that they must not cross the border to help their neighbors in the northern territory put out fires started by incendiary bombs. Hitler must be looking for trouble when he starts to hand out orders to Irishmen.

Mr. Ilsley stated definitely that the Dominion will not during the period of the war try to bring about further action on the Sirois report. This he hoped would not occasion "disappointment" in some quarters or "resentment" in others. The public will share the wish, and hope that controversy on the subject may cease. There are troubles enough on hand at present without prolonging that unpromising wrangle.

It is estimated that the new Dominion tax measures will bring the total taxation paid by Canadians this year up to 54 per cent of the combined incomes of all the people in the Dominion. Putting it in more realistic terms, Canadians on the average are to spend more than half their time earning money with which to pay taxes. The conscription of wealth is an accomplished fact.

Since Britain cannot be expected to export a great amount of civilian goods while the war continues, the easing of the duties on British goods coming into Canada will not produce results bulking large in the trade statistics. But in such times small benefits are more than usually important, and the reductions stand as another token of Canada's desire to help keep the wheels turning.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1891—50 Years Ago

Lieutenant Governor Royal is visiting Battleford.

Taxation in the East Edmonton school district is three mills on the dollar. Land is valued at five dollars an acre.

McCrimmon's grading outfit was ready to start grading near Wolf Creek when the stage passed on Monday.

Nearly all wheat has been seeded in this district. From 50 to 75% more land is being put under crop this year than last.

Judge Rouleau will arrive on the 8th to hold court here.

P. Desormeau, who arrived recently from Montreal, has opened a tailor shop in connection with Larne and Picard's general store.

1901—40 Years Ago

James Pollard has bought E. Acton's bus line between Edmonton and Strathcona.

H. G. Acres, V.S., has opened an office two doors east of the Grand Central hotel.

George Bremner of the H.B. Co., arrived in town yesterday from Winnipeg, en route to Ft. Simpson.

Lethbridge has been quarantined for small pox.

1911—30 Years Ago

The new building of the Union Bank was opened for business this morning.

Ottawa: Parliament will adjourn until Sir Wilfred Laurier returns from the Imperial conference, when the battle over reciprocity will be resumed.

A fire patrol boat for use on the Athabasca river is being built at Prairie Creek under order of the Dominion government.

The formal opening of Edmonton's new high school building is to take place on Tuesday next.

1921—20 Years Ago

London: The sum which Germany must pay has been increased to 6,750,000,000 pounds sterling by the addition of the sum which Belgium must pay to her allies on account of debts.

Ottawa: The fine for killing migratory birds out of season has been raised from $100 to $300.

Limerick: Six were killed and 14 wounded in a five hour battle near Galbally.

1931—10 Years Ago

Saskatoon: Premiers of the three prairie provinces are to confer with farmer organization representatives on plans for the orderly marketing of wheat.

Mr. Justice Walsh will take over his new duties as Lieut. Governor this week.

Edmonton now has an official "soup kitchen"—but mush is the dietary article dispensed, along with milk and sugar, and no bar to second or third helpings.

Saskatoon: A court here declined to accept eggs in payment of a fine.

The Saturday Night Review

The text of a broadcast delivered over radio station CFRN at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, May 3, by The Bulletin's associate editor,

Harold L. Weir

The highly successful British evacuation from Greece, with all its heroism and vivid action, gave us the most dramatic news of the week.

The extension of the American neutrality patrol to a point two thousand miles into the Atlantic gave us the most important.

It is interesting, of course, to follow the devious course of European and Asiatic diplomacy as it adjusts itself to the change in circumstances occasioned by the German occupation of Greece.

We have stressed, for instance, and perhaps overstressed the importance of Turkey's attitude which appears to be swinging in some small measure towards co-operation with the Axis. It appears to be fairly clear that Turkey will endeavor to maintain a form of friendship with Germany in exchange for which Germany will guarantee Turkey immunity from invasion.

It is probably a very uncertain bargain. For if the hostilities which have now broken out in Iraq should require immediate German attention, there is no doubt in the world that Hitler would drive through Turkey towards Iraq without hesitation in order to avoid a costly and lengthier campaign through Egypt and Syria.

Of interest, too, is the reaction of Russia to all these changes. Russia, during this past week, has begun to talk rather boldly about being prepared to meet all external enemies. We have assumed that her attitude towards Germany is stiffening a little.

Well, perhaps it is. But we shouldn't overlook the fact that defiant talk sometimes emanates from anxiety as well as from belligerence. The Russians for instance, were puzzled by the movement of German troops through Finland, last Tuesday. Hitler is fully conscious of the fact that you don't need to invade a potential adversary to keep him in order. There is such a thing as worrying him to death.

Now these shifting events in Europe and Asia are interesting. But compared with the American scene, they are not vital.

This is the one essential fact in the war, that if the United States can send Britain maximum quantities of munitions and supplies, Britain cannot possibly be beaten no matter how the European and Asiatic nations choose to align themselves.

Thus, the extension of the neutrality patrol, which helps to keep the life line of supplies open, is the most eventful development of the week.

In connection with this momentous step taken by Mr. Roosevelt, there must be considered the rising tide of American public opinion in favor of even greater aid to Britain.

This week, 48 of America's leading authors and writers addressed an appeal to the administration for increased assistance to the British war effort.

And in spite of the frantic efforts of defeatists and isolationists like Charles Lindbergh, who disgraces a military title no longer, American feeling grew more actively pro-British than ever.

Notable in this chorus of insistence upon help for the Empire was the voice of Collier's magazine which in its latest issue, not only prints a splendid article by Wendell Willkie, but publishes editorial which opens with these portentous words:

"We can't see anything for the United States to do but to help Great Britain to the hilt in the Battle of the Atlantic."

Now all this force of American public opinion and American assistance imposes a terrific burden on Hitler.

Hitler must stop the United States. He cannot afford to have that tremendous tide of supplies and munitions of war pouring into Great Britain. By September, American factories will be turning out between 1,700 and 1,800 of the finest fighting planes in the world every month.

This means that every German city and every German seaport, by that time, will be getting the same bitter medicine as has been dosed out to London, Coventry, Plymouth, Manchester, Liverpool and Bristol.

The British can take it. Could any other people in the world take it? Certainly the Germans couldn't. And Hitler knows they couldn't take it. He knows their little Nazi souls, shrivelled by a generation of fear and hate, are not capable of patience or endurance or fortitude.

In organized groups or in army units, the Germans are splendid soldiers, courageous, strong and resourceful. But eight years of totalitarianism have killed their individuality. There are no longer 70 million free Germans intelligently and voluntarily supporting the German state.

There is only the supreme Nazi state resting arrogantly and intolerably on the backs of 70 million Germans who have been squeezed and mashed into an inarticulate, unthinking, unidentifiable and hopeless mass.

When the bombs come screaming down on cities and high walls crash and great searing flames lick the earth, the only man who can endure these things is the man who can cling to the strength of his own indomitable nature. It is no good, then, to think of the might of the Reich or the promises of Adolf Hitler or the dignity of the Nordic race. That is a time when a man must stand alone, relying only on the power and the glory of the human soul.

The Nazis can't do it. The German soul has been drained of everything but corroding hatred and the blind instinct of the slave to hear only his master's voice.

It is very clear, then, that Hitler must somehow dam up at the source the flow of materials that will make these things possible.

How can he do it?

Two possible methods present themselves.

The Passing Show

By J. S. Cowper

Fate took me last week into one of the quiet backwaters of life and forced me to spend a few days amid flowers, sunshine and softly-spoken people.

A hundred times or more on business bent, I had speeded on fast steamers through Active Pass, the narrow tide-torn waterway with a right angle turn through which vessels pass half way between Vancouver and Victoria. Last week I landed at Galiano, the island which forms the north bank of the Pass expecting to take steamer that evening for the mainland, but found I had to wait three days.

It is good in this war-torn time, to find people who live leisurely, visit one another for afternoon tea and take time to think. One septuagenarian host with fingers as nimble as Paderewski's played Chopin numbers on his piano, with deep feeling; another a retired mathematical professor who receives parcels of books by each steamer and lends them freely to the islanders, displayed his skill at fine cabinet work. Rows of chairs in the large living room of his home were a left-over from the previous evening when he had given one of his regular musicales for any who wished to come. The lamp of culture never flickers on Galiano.

Yet it is not all wandering in orchards, sunbathing and watching the procession of halibutters, trollers, barge tows and de luxe liners through the Pass. Radio and occasional patrol planes overhead gave reminder that the nation is at war. One retired seadog had left his roses to take command of a North Sea minesweeper; from many a quiet home a youth had gone to join the R.A.F.

Valtin and Mosley

Two books, each dealing with the European scene preceding the war, and each written by a youngish man whose affection for his comrade-wife seeps through his story, filled in my reading at Galiano.

One was Jan Valtin's "Out of the Night;" the other, Leonard O. Mosley's "Europe Down Stream."

Of Jan Valtin's book there is little need to write. It has steadily headed the list of non-fiction best sellers since it left the press—the German youth of 15 who joined the Communist Party to find himself ground between the upper and nether millstones of Communist terrorism and Nazi cruelty.

No more detailed and horrifying record of the fiendishness of Nazi cruelties and the tyranny of Communist party discipline has been given to the world than is contained within the covers of Valtin's book. Even now, with his body broken from floggings and his wife and child dead from the tortures and severities of a Nazi penal camp, the Communists are still seeking vengeance on him. Happily there is little chance of success in their efforts to have the U.S. authorities expel Valtin from the sanctuary he has found on this continent.

Betraying Democracy

In June, 1937, after Jan Valtin had been released from Camp Fullsbuettel after three years of torture, on condition that he become a Gestapo spy, Mosley and his bride Isa were leaving for Europe, to be pitched into the throes and hazards of the Spanish Civil War. They were to follow the onward march of Fascism and Nazism till they fled from Germany at the outbreak of hostilities.

The present war, says Mosley, really began in the Spanish peninsula in 1937, when Hitler and Mussolini, conquering a mutual aversion and contempt, cemented their alliance and came into the open with their "nerve war" against Britain.

Both von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano had assured their masters that Britain was decadent and would not fight. Spain was to be used as the testing ground of their theories.

Says Mosley: "All that year Italy and Germany made determined, if indirect, war against us. They intervened openly on the side of General Franco, helping him with troops and technicians to his inevitable victory. Their Heinckels and Junkers blew thousands of innocent Spaniards to perdition; they bombed our ships with the overwhelming weight of their shells and bombs; they destroyed a democratic people and turned a friendly pro-British republic into an armed fortress for sure against us when the time came for widespread war. And, as Ribbentrop forecast, the government and the bulk of the British people did nothing. Almost with complacence they watched a corner of Europe vital to their security being bombarded into the hands of Britain's enemies . . . No wonder Hitler and Mussolini congratulated their advisers on their wisdom and foresight. No wonder they decided to go on with their new campaign, and stop at nothing in the future."

Price of Selfishness

It's maddening to read of the elaborate precautions taken by Britain and France to prevent it becoming known that the "pirate" submarines in the Mediterranean were Mussolini's—requiring reports of the Non-Intervention Committee to be approved by Il Duce before being made public. It's maddening to learn how Chamberlain engineered Eden's exclusion from the Cabinet because Eden wished to take action to stop totalitarian aggression in Spain. The whole story, right up to the sabotaging of Czeckoslovakia and the invasion of Poland is maddening.

It's particularly maddening now that Gibraltar and Britain's hold of the Mediterranean are threatened, to learn that friendly Spain was made a sacrifice to appeasement fears, vanities and ambitions.

Germans In Japan

When Sir John Latham left Australia to represent the Commonwealth government in Tokyo, with him, representing Australian Associated Press, went Mr. Clive Turnbull, of the staff of the Herald, Melbourne, and he sent back from Tokyo this analysis:

What does the average Japanese think about Germany? He thinks that his government thought it expedient, at a time when England appeared to be in greatest danger, to tie up with Germany, and now he has begun to wonder very seriously whether that was wise. What does he think about Italy? He doesn't think about Italy at all.

It would be a mistake to think that the Japanese are pro-German or pro-British, or pro anything but Japanese. Neither are they even anti-foreign; here, again, they are merely pro-Japanese. Certainly you find plenty of now generally elderly business men who are pro-British, and plenty of militarists who are pro-Nazi. But they are not representative. The average Japanese, waiting in the Ginza and meditating on the quality of sake these days, or who is going to win the sumo wrestling tournament, cares no more about the respective merits and demerits of British and Germans than the average Australian cares about the respective virtues of Singalese and Annamites. He is alarmed, perhaps, by what he considers American belligerence; he usually lets it go at that.

Among the minority who make policies and public opinion, of course, it is a different matter. They are beginning to wonder whether they have not been left holding the Axis bag.

At the time when the tripartite alliance was entered into a large number of Japanese firmly believed that Britain was about to collapse and that, in co-operation with a friendly Germany, Japan could proceed to reparcel the world, taking as her share a protectorate over the East Indies, Thai, Indo-China and Burma for a start. In the first flush of enthusiasm Nazis were encouraged, or at least allowed to enter Japan in droves. Now there are some thousands. On one plea and another they wormed their way into Japanese departments.

These "fifth columnists" of Hitler likewise made their way into other departments. They have succeeded in subverting a portion of the press, and even getting anti-Jewish drivel published, although the average Japanese would not know a Jew from a jereboam. The German Embassy is reported to subsidize one Japanese journal to the extent of 20,000 yen a month—probably in smuggled yen at that, bought at depreciated rates in Shanghai. German language students are scattered all over the country. In Manchukuo Germans ride about the country, lording it over the inhabitants.

Being unable to get their propaganda material out of Germany today, they have made Japan the base for the printing of vast quantities of German publicity, which is being dumped in the South American countries. At the same time they are stirring up anti-American sentiment.

They are background workers. Their social behavior is impeccable. There are no frictions in Tokyo's extraordinarily cosmopolitan foreign community. The Imperial hotel in Tokyo is filled with a larger proportion of the world's diplomats, official and back stairs, spies and counter-spies, log-rollers, and lobbyists, than has probably gathered together since great days of espionage in Switzerland in the last war.

But the extent of the German drive for Japanese support is not to be minimized. The Nazis have made "cultural" penetration a fine art, and indeed have left other nations standing. No less a personage than Richard Strauss composed special music for the 2,600th anniversary of the Japanese Empire; you can buy the records in Tokyo today. There are finely produced German magazines for sale at low prices—printed in English, of course, for Axis and non-Axis alike must speak it in Japan. It is curious to hear someone saying in perfect English to a Japanese: "Well, did you hear the good news about the fleet?" and to realize that he is a German and that it is to German claims about damage to the British fleet that he is referring.

In spite of all this the Japanese are faced by a very thought-provoking reality. That is that the China war does not show the slightest sign of conclusion; that the United States has adopted what is construed to be a threatening attitude; and that the Soviet government is quietly squeezing the Japanese in the north, exacting a concession here, a concession there.

Japan has acquired two allies, one of whom is useless in any case, and the other unable to render any practical assistance. And she has around her in a far from friendly condition three of the largest and two of the most powerful countries in the world—China, Soviet Russia and the United States.

If ever a nation got itself into a tough spot it is Japan. Japan has no essential love for the Nazis or the Fascists. It has no essential love for any foreigners. A political clique has let the Nazis in. It is quite on the cards that, one of these days, the whole lot will be tossed out again.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Axis Terms of Peace

Having returned home after visiting Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin, the Japanese Foreign Minister, Mr. Matusuoka, has published through a controlled newspaper—"The Japanese Times Advertiser"—the twelve conditions of an Axis peace. They are of the utmost interest and they will surely be studied with the greatest care by the Administration, by Congress and by the nation. Avowedly, they are addressed to the United States. The twelve conditions have been formulated not by a neutral outsider but by Hitler's chief ally. They are issued at a moment when the fortunes of war are running in favor of the Axis and they are timed to take full advantage of the confusion created here by the propaganda of defeat.

The Axis conditions of peace remove the last vestage of doubt that in their settlement of the world the Axis powers intend to settle with the United States as well as with Great Britain and China and Russia and Europe. They do not even pretend to subscribe to the view which is held by so many sincere Americans that this is a "foreign war" in which America is not involved unless America deliberately and foolishly and unnecessarily involves itself. For though we are not at war, Mr. Matsuoka makes it perfectly clear that we are expected to sign and ratify a treaty of peace in which we surrender not only many of our vital interests but also—and this is the crucial point—our sovereign national self-defence.

The drastic character of the Axis terms will come as such a shock to many Americans that they will wish not to believe that such terms could be or would be demanded of us. They will hope to hear reassuring denials from Japan that the terms outlined in "The Japan Times Advertiser" are not to be taken seriously; probably, if the disclosure is taken seriously here, the denials will be made in order to reassure us and confuse us for another few weeks.

But let us not be deceived. These terms are not only isued from a high official source, but they are given an Axis victory, self-evident. They are not extravagant; on the contrary, they are the minimum terms of a victorious Axis.

The first condition, the very first let us observe, is that the United States and Great Britain are to concede naval parity to the Axis—that is to say, that we are to slow up our naval construction until Japan and Germany have, in addition to land and air supremacy in Europe, Africa and Asia, naval parity as well. We are to give up, in short, the one weapon in which we still have superiority—the weapon which determines the command of the two oceans.

Moreover, let us note carefully that this "parity" is to exist not between the Axis and the United States with its own two-ocean navy, but between Britain plus the United States and the Axis. This must be read in connection with Mr. Matsuoka's fifth point which is that the continent of Europe is to be surrendered absolutely to Hitler; thus the British part of the British-American naval power is to remain at the mercy of the German air force and submarines. Under these conditions what Mr. Matsuoka calls "parity" would be in fact immense naval superiority. We are not only to sign away our right to build a two-ocean navy, but we are to make ourselves permanently dependent on the British Navy based upon the British Isles which are to be under perpetual threat of bombardment, Blockade and invasion.

That the Axis terms call for the effective disarmament of the United States is manifect also in several other conditions. Point number two calls for the demilitarization not only of Gibraltar and Singapore, but of all United States bases in Alaska, and of all United States bases west of Hawaii. Nor is that all. Point number eight, believe it or not, is that the "stronghold" of Hawaii "be reduced in importance." Thus we are to let the Axis have "parity" in warships—our side of the parity being in part a British fleet under the guns of Germany, and we are to surrender and dismantle or greatly weaken all the oceanic bases from which our inferior fleet can operate.

The other terms of peace must then be studied in the light of this fundamental requirement—namely the acceptance of a naval disarmament which places us in a position of permanent naval inferiority. Let us pass quickly over the terms to be imposed upon the British. They are to retire from the Mediterranean, from the Middle East, and from Africa, are to accept a Hitler Europe as their neighbor across the Straits of Dover, and South Africa is to separate from the British Commonwealth.

Let us come to the terms which are offered us. In the Pacific the Netherlands Indies are to be detached and set adrift and defenceless as are the Philippines. In all the Pacific islands Japanese "advisers" are to be admitted. Australia is to be opened to Japanese immigration.

But our complete retirement from the Pacific behind a weakened Hawaii is by no means all that is asked of us. We are also to surrender the Monroe Doctrine.

Point No. 8 deals with South America. Here the language is slightly veiled but the meaning, except to the utterly innocent or the wilfully blind, is clear as crystal. We are to agree, that is to say we are to sign and ratify a treaty of peace, in which we "undertake" not to form hegemony over South America inimical to the Axis and would accord the fullest freedom and equality of opportunity to Germany and her Allies in that continental brotherhood."

When Mr. Matsuoka's spokesman tells us we must not form "hegemony" over South America, he means that we must renounce the right under the Monroe Doctrine to intervene if South America is invaded or conquered from within or made into a colony of the Axis. When he demands "the fullest freedom and equality of opportunity to Germany and her allies," he means that we must agree to let the Axis enter South America infiltrate it, colonize it, and then control it.

There is nothing fantastic in these terms, nothing that is not entirely credible. For given the assumptions on which they are based, that we will permit Britain, China, Australia to be defeated, our naval inferiority will be such that the Axis will be quite able to confront us with the choice of fighting alone and unprepared or of accepting the disarmament which Mr. Matsuoka describes and—consequently then—of surrendering our position and our vital interests from Alaska to Hawaii to the Philippines, of renouncing the Monroe Doctrine in the Western Hemisphere.

It may be asked why the Axis powers have chosen this moment to disclose their terms. The answer is in part, no doubt, that victory has exhilarated them. But there is a more calculated reason. They think that this is the moment to confront us with the whole issue because they believe that the nation is so confused by honest doubt, by defeatist propaganda, and by the lack of clear, firm and candid leadership that it will not and cannot take a decision.

They have struck hard at us with the intention of paralyzing American public opinion by provoking at once an internal controversy in which some will be frightened into inaction, some will think the terms too big to be credible, others will be so preoccupied by the effort to awaken their fellow citizens that they will have no time or energy to think of the practical measures that need to be taken.

The Gospel According To St. Mark

And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your rest: it is enough, the hour is come: behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of sinners.

Rise up, let us go; lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.

And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders.

And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he; take him, and lead him away safely.

And as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, Master, master; and kissed him.

And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

Time Flies

Leeds Yorkshire Post

A Leeds woman visited a clockmaker and asked to have a new pendulum supplied for quite a substantial chimney clock.

The clockmaker, curious to know how the original pendulum was lost, received this reply:

"My house was bombed in a raid, but the clock, minus the pendulum, was found in a neighbor's house four houses away. The glass covering the clock face was not even cracked."

LACOMBE

J. E. LUNDBERG IS CONSUL FOR M.W.A.

J. E. Lundberg, Eckville, was chosen provincial consul of the Modern Woodmen of America. when the Provincial camp of that organization met in convention at Lacombe Thursday. Mrs. A. W. Moore of Bentley was elected provincial secretary. These officers succeed retiring Consul Cosgrove and Secretary B. S. Cameron of Lacombe.

Charles Raymond, consul of the Lacombe camp, introduced visiting officials. Nominations for a delegate to represent the province at its head camp, in Chicago, on June 3, resulted in W. E. Deckard of Lacombe, being elected.

A banquet tendered the visitors at the Empress hotel following the business session, was attended by 26 guests. Mayor Thos. Wilks extended a hearty welcome to the visiting delegates and J. E. Lundberg presided as toastmaster. Included among those seated were the following: John E. Lundberg, M. E. Granlund, Ponoka; Nbr. Simpson, Rimbey; C. W. Nixdorf, Airdrie; C. A. Berggren, Bowden; Lee Donnenworth, Mannville; Mrs. A. W. Moore, Bentley; G. Z. H. Van Hoaften, Cremona; A. A. Aspinall, Innisfail; A. Reumiller, Keoma; James M. Underdahl, aMnyberries; Charles Raymond, W. E. Deckard and B. S Cameron, Lacombe.

Revelling in what some residents are pleased to call a "freedom from suicide" period, Innisfail this week counted 15 new babies, all born at the local hospital. Mothers and offspring are doing well.

Exemplifying the spirit of the west, 13 neighbors turned out Friday to put in the crop of R. L. McCambley, farmer south of Crossfield, who is recovering from a recent illness. Under the supervision of H. P. Wright and W. Pole, 105 acres were tilled, 50 acres cultivated and 155 seeded with a pig pasture and garden thrown in for good measure. Mrs. McCambley served dinner to the workers.

Miss Helen Kennedy, Bulletin correspondent at Stettler, over the weekend received a long-distance telephone call from New York City. Her caller was George Maier, Austrian refugee with whom Miss Kennedy has been corresponding for some time. Mr. Maier was said to be mindful of Charles Boyer, motion picture star, because of his accent.

Bawlf lost one of its oldest buildings recently when a barn built by the late Gulbrand Hanson in west Bawlf was dismantled. Bawlf was built on one corner of Hanson's original homestead.

Original in the Peace River and perhaps in Alberta is a method being used by women of Fairview in raising funds for the Lord Mayor's Fund. With an abjective of $60 the women are tea party hostesses to five guests, each of which is charged 15 cents and each of whom in turn invites four others to tea at their homes. It ends up with only one paying guest invited and then it all starts again.

Thanking the staff of the Two Hills Commentator, school publication at the hamlet of Two Hills, letters were received recently from Pte. Mike Mandiuk and Pte. M. Slevinski, of the Canadian army overseas. Officials of the magazine had previously mailed copies of the paper to the men.

$196 In Stamps Purchased Since Drive Underway

Since Monday, March 3, Fairview and Vanrena school pupils have purchased $196 worth of Canadian war savings stamps—Fairview, $153 and Vanrena $43. April sales amounted to $49.50 for both schools.

During one period Vanrena pupils bought four times their original stamp objective. Highest sales in Fairview for one day amounted to $21.50.

Fairview citizens have been donating stamps for the free stamp draw on Tuesdays, of which Anna Stair and Audrey Clegg took the last on hand. The first $5 war savings certificate was bought by Grade 5 student, Vera Walker, largest individual purchaser. Teacher E. E. Oliver is at the head of school sales in the Fairview municipality. John Houlden Vanrena teacher, is salesman at his school.

Sisters Create New Record For Good Attendance

Miss Marion and Miss Geraldine Sanden, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Sanden, of Bawlf, have a splendid record for perfect attendance at Sunday school. The sisters have not been absent for ten years. Their mother has a nine-year perfect attendance record. They attend the Lutheran Sunday school and church services.

Miss Marion Sanden is teacher of Grade 1 in the Sunday sesool. Miss Geraldine Sanden has a perfect attendance record for the past 11 years in the public and high school, in which time she has been neither late nor absent.

Farmer Passes After Injuries In Fire Fight

Felix Roursset, 53, pioneer Vimy farmer died over the weekend in an Edmonton hospital following injuries received when he was crushed between a tractor and a granary last week.

Mr. Rousett was attempting to move the granary from a nearby forest fire at the time the accident occurred, neighbors said. A batchelor, he was deaf and had farmed for some time near St. Arno, Alta.

He is survived by his father and a sister in Manitoba.

CROSSFIELD

REBEKAHS FETED BY ODDFELLOWS

Crossfield Oddfellows Lodge, No. 42, entertained the Rebekahs and their escorts at a social evening recently in commemoration of the founding of the Order. F. Williams, of Calgary, showed motion pictures, and Grand Master Lount gave an address on the moral education plan. Community singing and the serving of lunch brought the evening to a close.

Seeding is progressing favorably in the Crossfield district, with from one-half to two-thirds of the wheat seeding completed and a number of fields already showing green. Sufficient moisture is present for seed germination and there is a good subsoil reserve, but surface conditions show the effects of the drying winds and steady sunshine of the past ten days and a good rain would be welcomed.

Kinsmen Convene In Red Deer For Annual Meeting

Red Deer will be the scene of the annual district convention of the iKnsmen Clubs of District No. 4, Sunday and Monday, May 11 and 12. The Red Deer club will be hosts to the visitors and arrangements are in charge of a committee of which Hugh Farthing is chairman and Marshall Lees secretary.

Visitors are expected from Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Drumheller, Camrose and Vegreville. Harvey Greenway, district governor, will preside. An official luncheon will be held Sunday and on Monday there will be a golf tournament for the Dinosaur Trophy at present held by the Medicine Hat club.

The Saturday Night Review

First, he might divert the productive capacity of the United States into channels that will shut off supplies to Britain by forcing the United States into war.

It would obviously not do much good to provoke the United States into a European war because the results would be exactly the same as though the supply of munitions had continued to Britain. Germany would still be bombed and invaded even though the bombers and invaders might be American as well as British.

But a war that might very well divert American aid from Britain would be a major war in the Pacific. Raids on the East Indies, on Malaya, on Singapore and on the Philippines would impel the Americans to build up huge armaments for their owns use in this new zone of conflict.

It was clearly Hitler's intention to entrust this task of diversion to the Japanese. But the psychological moment for such intervention came and went some weeks ago. It seems to be evident that one of three things has happened in Japan:

First, that the moderate party is strong enough to curb the martial impatience of the war party.

Second, that the Japanese believe the risk, in a war with the United States, is too great.

Third, that the Japanese are still holding out for a bigger price from the Axis.

However, if the Germans fail to persuade the Japanese to draw America into a Pacific war, or if such a war fails to divert American assistance from Britain, Hitler has a second scheme up his sleeve which he may very likely try to put into effect.

You may be perfectly sure that the German Fuehrer and his colleagues have not forgotten the bloodless victory of Munich and Berchtesgaden. Hitler is said to have already incorporated into his life and letters a jubilant account of how he shouted at Mr. Chamberlain and persuaded that gentleman to make him a present of the British Empire.

It is pre-eminently a fatal weakness in German psychology to try successful tricks a second time. Hitler simply can't help himself from trying to pull another Munich sooner or later. It is definitely on the cards.

Hitler, then, may do this:

He may make herculean efforts to drive vigorously into the oil fields of Iraq and the Caucasus and into the wheatlands of the Ukraine and, having consolidated his position in these places, to declare his objective achieved. He would swear by all his dubious gods that he meditated no further steps against Britain or the Western Hemisphere.

On this specious basis, he might ask for peace.

Of course, he would have no intention of letting it go at that. He would be as treacherous as he was at Munich. His idea would be to divide the war into two parts with an intermission during which he could refresh himself and rebuild German and Italian morale.

He would be attracted to this plan because of its likelihood of success. He would reason that if Britain permitted herself to be fooled and humiliated at Munich in 1938, she might permit herself to be fooled again in 1941 or 1942.

Nor would his reasoning be wholly fallacious. Britain, under certain circumstances, might do just that. She was fooled at Munich. She might be fooled again.

Mr. Churchill, of course, would not stand for it. Nor would Mr. Roosevelt assent. But Mr. Roosevelt is already struggling with a small section of perverse public opinion. And Mr. Churchill, attacked in a moment of colossal public folly, could be replaced. Even a little expected thing, remember, like the defeat in Greece, aroused storms of criticism and reproach from the public press.

This is a calamity that the British Empire must avoid like the plague—the calamity of a false, fictitious and premature peace. For a war half won is a war lost.

It is imperative that we should bear carefully in mind the dangers that lie in the perversion of our thoughts and attitudes. It might be very easy, while our emotions are abnormally disturbed, to listen to the appeasers who will gradually appear among us. We should be warned to keep our minds firmly fixed on the true essentials of this struggle and to accept no specious opiates of emotional quackery to alleviate our national pain.

Our people have already demonstrated their gallantry. The men and women of Britain have shown supreme fortitude and valor. Our soldiers, in point of initiative and courage, are unexcelled.

The time is shortly coming when we will be called upon to demonstrate our wisdom—which is the rarest and most essential quality of all.

The Greek chapter in this war might now appear to be closed. The Germans occupy Athens and have overrun a good part of the mainland, while King George and his government will keep up a semblance of resistance from Crete and other isles of Greece.

In reality, the Greek chapter is not closed and never can be closed. In the course of human justice, the Greek nation will be restored to power and Greek soil will regain its precious independence.

Had this conquest occurred three thousand years ago, it might have meant the stifling of a great civilization. Today it is only the temporary eclipse of a nation, because the priceless civilization that was formulated by the Greeks is enshrined in the hearts and traditions of three hundred million men throughout the earth.

Greek civilization is the basis of the British civilization and its daughter the American civilization. And it is Greek imperilism, that benign imperialism based on common culture as contrasted with the Roman imperialism which was and is based on the principle of a common threat, that moves the Americans to come to Mother Britain's aid.

Among the early products of the isles of Greece, you see, were loyalty and trust and friendship and those other qualities of the heart which add to the sweetness and the flavor of life.

It is eminently fitting that King George and his government should preserve the spark of Hellenic liberty on these same isles.

For it was on these dots of land in the blue Aegean Sea that man first began to dream of intellectual and spiritual freedom and to weave his dreams into that code of kindly human relationships which became polished and buffed into Greek culture.

Here liberty was born and here will liberty be cherished.

The isles of Greece have given mankind much. They have given nothing greater to the world—nor more apt today—that this which was written on Patmos:

"And he that overcometh and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, as the vessels of the potter shall they be broken to shivers; even as I received of my Father. And I will give him the morning star."

Three New Health Districts Are Established In Alberta

Bringing the total to nine, three more rural full-tme health districts will be established in Alberta this year, it was announced Saturday by Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health and in charge of relief. There are six such districts at present, operating in the territory tributary to Legal, Lamont, Stettler, Didsbury, Red Deer and High River.

"These district are served by a full time staff consisting of a medical officer of health, two or more public health nurses, a sanitary inspector and a secretary," Dr. Cross said.

GIVE GOOD SERVICE

"These units are giving a fine type of service in the prevention of disease and death. The existing six units serve approximately 100,000 people in rural Alberta. It is our intention to establish three more such units during the present year and it is our hope that in time all the more thickly populated areas in Alberta will be provided with this service."

Reviewing the activities of the health department, Dr. Cross declared that "The policy of your provincial department of health is to maintain and extend disease prevention services and to expend our resources so that the greatest good may accrue to the greatest numbers."

Dr. Cross said that there are now 31 public health nurses operating in this province. Seventeen new nursing districts have been established in the last two years.

Continuation and expansion of the travelling health clinics also was announced by Dr. Cross. "This year the clinic will work along the eastern borders of the province," he said. "The staff consists of a surgeon, a medical practitioner, two dentists and a number of nurses."

Turning his attention to hospitals, Dr. Cross said the department paid out annually about $500,000 in grants. He pointed out that a technical staff is maintained by the department to advise hospitals in matters of medical or general administration.

MENTAL DISEASES

Much attention is devoted to mental diseases, he said, and care of this type of patient "Constitutes the greatest single item in tha budget of the Alberta health department. About $750,000 annually, or about one-third of our whole budget is required for this work. Every facility within our resources is provided to insure the best treatment in earlier cures and a higher discharge rate from our mental hospitals."

Dr. Cross said that a tireless and unremitting fight was being carried on against communicable diseases.

Dealing with efforts to control typhoid fever, he said that in 1910 with a population of 335,000 there were 953 cases of typhoid reported and 192 deaths. Last year with more than a doubled population there were only 36 cases and five deaths from typhoid.

Control of diphtheria, likewise is proving effective. In 1922 there were 732 cases of this disease reported and 121 deaths resulted. Last year there were 52 cases and 11 deaths.

Regarding tuberculosis, Dr. Cross said that "special efforts have been directed" toward its control. He said that "control of bone tuberculosis is largely a matter of safeguarding your milk supply. The control of tuberculosis of the lungs resolves itself into a matter of the early discovery of active cases and the immediate hospitalization of those cases. By the early discovery and early hospitalization of cases, the patient is given a better chance to recover and he is removed from his associates before they have contracted the disease from him."

The department, he said, maintained tuberculosis diagnostic clinics, directed by physicians specially trained in diagnosis and control of tuberculosis. In 1939 stationary clinics were maintained at 13 different points and 261 sessions were conducted. The travelling tuberculosis clinic visited 45 other points and conducted 1,002 examinations. These clinics discovered 266 new cases of tuberculosis in 1939 or 62.6 per cent of new cases reported during the year. He recalled that in 1936 the government passed an act providing for free care for patients afflicted with this disease.

LOW RATE

In 1935 there were 270 beds available in Alberta. Now there are 411. "While it is too early to expect full results from our improved facilities for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis, yet our tuberculosis death rate for 1939 was 15.3 per 100,000 of population, which is the lowest rate yet recorded in this province. This rate is just half what it was in 1931."

Diseases of middle life, such as diabetes and cancer were receiving increased attention. Stressing that insulin treatment for diabetes is expensive, he said the government provided this treatment where necessary. Last year 475 patients received insulin from the provincial government at a cost to the department of $11,000.

"Cancer is the most serious disease of middle life and its prevention and control is one of our greatest public health problems," he said.

He mentioned the recent establishment of the cancer diagnostic clinics in this city and Calgary. At these clinics referred patients may receive free diagnostic and treatment services with X-ray and radium, he said. "As our resources permit, we hope to expand this service."

YOUNG PEOPLES' FARM WEEK SET FOR JUNE 4-11

Open to all rural boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 27, "Farm Young Peoples' Week" will be sponsored at the University of Alberta June 4 to 11 by the university depariment of extension, the provincial department of agriculture and the United Farmers of Alberta, it was announced Monday.

This year will mark the 23rd anniversary of the week. Those attending are housed on the campus and are given lectures by members of the extension department in matters of importance to the farming industry. Competitions are sponsored by various organizations in conjunction with the course, including two $75 scholarships by the department of agriculture to a school of agriculture to the boy and girl winning highest honors on an examination of the work taken up.

During the week visits are made to the parliament buildings, theatres and city industries. Annual business session of the junior branch of the U.F.A. will also be held at this time.

Feature of the course will be "feeders' day" at the university farm, when rural information and problems are dealt with. Several hundred farmers are expected to attend this particular period.

600 ENTRANTS TO TAKE PART MUSIC EVENT

Festival Here May 12 To 16—Time-Table Is Issued

Revealing total entries of more than 600, the time-table for the annual Alberta Music Festival, to be held here from Monday, May 12, to Friday, May 16, provides equal distribution of outstanding competitions over the several days. McDougall auditorium is the main scene of the festival.

There are among others 425 vocal and instrumental entries, 110 in elocution, 30 in folk dancing and 25 in choral speech classes.

Elocution and choral classes will be held all day Monday and Tuesday at the Masonic Tmeple, with Mrs. Jean Campbell of Winnipeg adjudicating. Folk dancing will be held Monday at the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall with Miss Phyllis Sanderson, director of physical culture at the Youth Training Centre, Calgary as adjudicator.

The main music competitions open Monday night, when a feature will be the appearance of the Royal Alexandra Hospital Nurses' choral club, under G. A. Kevan. Another competitor will be the Kiwanis Glee Club under Ed. McGarvey and assisted by the Jasper Park Lodge orchestra under the baton of Cecil Cameron. Special arrangements of martial songs by W. G. Strachan will be featured. The open tenor solo with four competitors also will be on Monday's card.

PIANO CONCERTO CLASS

Tuesday night will feature the piano concerto class with five entries. There will be five competitors in the lieder event and eight in the open soprano, as well as two bugle bands.

Church choirs will be featured Wednesday night. All Saints Cathedral choir, Knox United, Christ Church and First Baptist will be heard. There are four entries in the open Bach event; three in the violin and piano competition.

On Thursday night the open baritone event will hold major attention with one Calgary and three Edmonton entries. The Edmonton Male Chorus, the Edmonton Ladies' chorus and six competitors in the classic Stutchbury Cup event will also be heard Monday night.

OUT-OF-TOWN ENTRIES

Friday morning will be occupied mainly with out-of-town entries. In the afternoon there will be 'teen age choruses, junior vocal ensembles and others. In the evening three bands will be heard, as well as Calgary's Mount Royal College junior string and junior symphony orchestras. Small female choruses also will be heard.

Dr. Arthur Collingwood, dean of the music faculty of Saskatchewan University and Steuart Wilson, noted British vocal authority, now resident in New York, will be the adjudicators in the vocal and instrumental classes.

The festival will be concluded with a grand concert at McDougall auditorium on Saturday night, May 17.

ALLAN WELCH IS BOARD PRESIDENT

Annual banquet and dance of the Interdenominational Young People's Board was held Saturday evening last at the Corona hotel when Gordon Pretty, retiring president was master of ceremonies.

Following the banquet Mr. Pretty conducted the competition between the societies prseent to determine which society would be awarded the pennant for having the most members present. The pennant was won by First Baptist.

Greetings were brought to the Board from the Ministerial Association by Lieut. S. Spooner. Greetings were brought from the Anglicans by Garth Walker and from the Baptist Union by Eddie Oldring. A spirited sing-song was then held under the leadership of Harold Campbell.

Those who were elected are: president, Allan Welsh; vice-president, Erol Gahan; recording secretary, Virginia Sanborn; corresponding secretary, Phyllis MacAllister; treasurer, Betty Hughes; leadeship convenor, Eleanor Hepburn; debating convenor, Ernest Fairhead; social convenor, Peggy Major; publicity convenor, Edith McClure; camp convenor, Joe Trickery; sports convenor, Percy Brown; devotional convenor, Ella Magee.

"Defenders" Are Victors As Rain Halts Training

As part of a program of defence training, Veterans' Volunteer Reserve members at a recent training period at the Exhibition grounds broke into two parties, one to "attack" and the other to "defend" vital positions at strategic spots. The defending veterans emerged triumphant with a number of prisoners.

The evening had just nicely started when an unexpected attack from rain clouds caused Colin D. MacKenzie, commanding officer, to cancel operations. About 150 members of the North Edmonton battalion took part, armed with rifles and revolvers of all types and vintages.

Weather permitting, the entire operation as originally arranged will be repeated on Friday of this week.

Italian Killed

ROME, May 5—(AP)—Duke Paolo Badoglio, son of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, was killed in an automobile accident in North Africa April 30, it was announced Sunday. He was an air force lieutenant, a veteran of the Ethiopian campaign.

Whirlaway Cops Kentucky Derby In Fastest Time Ever Recorded

Athletics One Of Features Boys' And Girls' Fair Program

Swimming, table tennis, gymnastics, pyramids and basketball are athletic highlights of the 18th annual Edmonton Boys' and Girls' Fair, opening Wednesday evening in the Y. M. C. A. building, according to word received Monday from Miss Gwynne Napier, managing director of the youth fair.

Entry booklets and prize lists show competition for every boy and girl in the Edmonton district from 10 to 21. Many of the competitions will be won by those students who have benefited from training in all this work at various school athletic sessions, it is expected.

The Department of Recreation, as the athletic side of the Fair is designated, is under the leadership of manager Dave Kushner, 10039 115 street. His co-directors in the swimming classes Bill McCormack, 11337 97 street and Helen Simpson, 11631 95A street. Entry date closes May 9 at 8 p.m. and contestants are required to be at the Y.W.C.A. building by 7 p.m., for a medical inspection.

In table tennis and similar classes, directors are Edith Walker and Kenneth Crockett. Entries closed Saturday and Directors Walker and Crockett reported a large entry list that compares favorably with other years. Y.M.C.A. rules will be followed in this section.

Eleanor Robertson and Kean Deane direct the destinies of the gymnastic class which includes tumbling, work with the side-horse and spring board, parallel bars and high bars, exercises and pyramids.

General athletics is led by Olga Barilko and Burton Margolus. Entries closed Saturday for all sports such as basketball throw and basketball team-ups, softball ditto, horse-shoe pitching and tennis.

Bowling tilts will take place Friday and Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Recreation bowling alley. The "Rec." trophy is up for competition and the entry deadline is Tuesday at 10 p.m. Directors are Victor Cox and Audrey Mitchell.

Vote Decides Two Hills Ball Games Continue

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

TWO HILLS, Alta., May 5.—Following careful discussion and a vote among local fans, it has been decided to continue operation of the Two Hills baseball team. Main grounds for doubt in the minds of some fans was that with many athletes enlisting for service with the fighting forces, there would be few youths left in the district able enough to bring the team into prominence.

Following officers were elected for the season: Dick Geleta, president; Walter Dowhaniuk, vice-president; William Odynski, secretary-treasurer; Nicholas Miskyw, manager; Fred Hannochko, coach, and Nick Hryyk, mascot. It was decided to continue the annual Empire Day tournament, and preparations are being rushed.

Outsiders Wins Pimlico Oaks

BALTIMORE, Md., May 5—(AP)—Cis. Marion, three-year-old chestnut filly owned by E. K. Bryson, squeezed out a victory in the $10,000 added Pimlico Oaks Saturday.

Hard ridden by Glenn Smith, Cis. Marion was a head in front of John A. Bell Jr's. Dark Discovery, Crispin Oglebay's Level Best, champion juvenile filly of 1940, finished third in her first start as a three-year-old. The time was 1:45 3-5.

Cis. Marion paid $18.30, $6.90 and $3.20. The victory was worth $9,775 to Bryson.

Fort Dix Has Athlete Talent

FORT DIX, N.J., May 5. — The United States army encampment here has its full share of athletic talent. Porky Ed. Oliver and T. Suffern Taller represent golf. Harold Sorenson, New York State Ski champion is in the infantry after a detail with ski troops.

Don. Weadon, high hurdler of Cornell, expects to make the army his career and Franklin Drastil, one of the finest pistol shots in New Jersey north is a draftee.

Jack Issac Is Feted By Club

Flashy members of the Edmonton Athletic Club hockey organization, Jack Isaac who leaves Monday to begin active service with the R.C.A.F., was guest of honor at a surprise party at his home Sunday evening.

Hosts were the other members of the team.

Isaac has been with the organization for the past two years when the team went to western finals and western semi-finals.

Golf Champ To Play At Banff

SPOKANE, May 5—(CP)—Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Texas, twice United States women's amateur golf champion, will play an exhibition match at Banff, Alta., on Dominion Day, July 1.

Mahlon Rucker, Pacific Northwest Golf Association president, said here Saturday that Miss Jameson will compete in the P.N.G.A. annual tournament in Spokane, June 23-28, and then proceed to Banff.

Modest Mike Names Himself

ST. LOUIS, May 5—Mike Gonzales, former St. Louis Cardinal backstop and long a Red Bird coach names Rogers Hornsby the best batter in history. Grover Cleveland Alexander the finest pitcher in a pinch, and "me, Gonzales" the top catcher of all time.

ROBOT REQUIRED TO HELP PREVENT BASEBALL SLUMPS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, May 5—(BUP)—Somebody some day undoubtedly will invent a robot that'll wash the dishes, sweep the floors and answer the doorbell and somebody else'll build a rocket that'll travel to the moon, but the job what'll stop 'em all is the cure for a baseball slump.

Slumps come and they go and nobody knows why. They make old men out of boys and they drive managers close to insanity. Sometimes they pass away in the twinkling of an eye. Other times they last for what seems like eternity.

EXCLUSIVE

Take the case of the world champion Cincinnati Reds. They lost four in a row, then they win 7 out of 8, only to drop three more in succession. They hung on the borderline between victory and defeat for a heart-pounding 30-minutes at Ebbets Field Thursday between the ninth and eleventh innings. Finally Lady Luck jilted the Dodgers and bestowed her affections on the Reds. In 11 savagely-fought innings the Reds beat the Dodgers, 2-1, snapped Brooklyn's 9-game streak and came up for daylight again. They have since lost and won a game.

What did Manager McKechnie do to bring the Reds out of their slump? Almost nothing but exert the kind of sympathetic patience a father would lavish on a stumbling baby trying to learn to walk. He held no hell fire meetings. He railed at none of his players. He talked quietly to them about their mistakes. Once when a Cincinnati player yelled at Pitcher Gene Thompson about a mistake, McKechnie cautioned the player, "Don't say anything else to Gene, please. He's trying as hard as he can and having enough trouble."

McKechnie's only move was a normal one—shaking up the batting order. Every manager does that when his team is going bad, hoping it'll have results.

After Bucky Walters had pitched and batted the Reds to victory Thursday, McKechnie revealed in the dressing room he had called the turn on his ball club. He pointed to Coach Jewel Ens and said, "ask him."

"Bill told me last night," Ens said, "that we would come out of it today. He said he could feel the tension releasing on the players."

"And another thing," McKechnie said, "you'll see a different ball game from now on. We've come out of the wilderness. Yes sir."

England Beats Scotland 3-1

GLASGOW, May 5—(CP Cable)—England fought from behind Saturday to defeat Scotland 3-1 in an International Soccer match at Hampden Park before 75,000.

Venters gave Scotland a one-goal lead early in the game but Welsh equalized before the change of ends and Welsh and Goulden scored in the second half for England.

Flamingoes All That Is Lacking

INGLEWOOD, Calif., May 5.—Hollywood Turf Club has snatched scenic ideas from Hialeah Park. The infield sparkles with five lakes, 300,000 petunias, 50,000 verbenas, 2,000 gladiolas and 2,000 dahlias. All that is lacking are the flamingoes.

TIGERS PACK 'EM IN

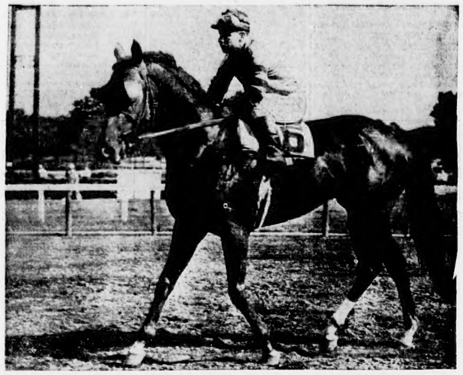
DETROIT, May 5.—Detroit's American League champions drew more customers at home last year than both St. Louis teams attracted to Sportsman's Park.

Double Exposure

Which is which really doesn't matter, but that's Marion Hopkins on the left, and her twin, Virginia. Los Angeles' record-wrecking swimming sisters are appearing at White Sulphur Springs.

SPORTS BULLETIN

Sets New Record



Whirlaway, above, not only breezed in an eight-length winner of the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, but he set up a new mark for the race. The favorites Porter's Cap and Our Boots, finished out of the money.

East Has Slight Margin In Allan Cup Play During 34 Years Of Competition

By LORNE BRUCE

REGINA, May 5—(CP)—Regina Rangers' victory in the sixth game over Sydney Millionaires brought the cup to the west for the 16th time since Sir Montagu Allan donated it in 1908. The east won it 18 times. At first the trophy was played for on a challenge basis.

The west won it six years and the east four until the playoff system was introduced in the 1919 season. Since then the east has held the cup 14 years and west 10.

With eight western products among Sydney's 12 regulars, a win for Millionaires last week would have been a victory for the west as well as the maritimes.

Most sensational play of the series was made by Dick Kowcinak, Sydney centre. In the last minute of the fourth game with Millionaire's goalie yanked in efforts to get tying goal, Dick dived 15 feet to prevent a clearing shot out of the Regina end from going into the empty Sydney net.

TOOK CHANCES

It was courageous too, because Dick took the chance of suffering a serious injury in his head-first crash into a goalpost.

Kowcinak was playing with his left wrist in a cast and needing to be reset because the fracture was not in correct position. This injury may prevent Dick from playing hockey again. He will be married in Sydney later this month.

The bigest disappointment was having to decide Canadian Senior Hockey championship on ice covered with fog and a temperature of about 80 above in the Arena. In the third period players in the corners were only blurs and even the referees reported they could not see what was happening on some of the plays.

HERO OF SERIES

Because Jim Henry's fine puck-blocking in Rangers' nets in the sixth game is freshest in the minds of the fans and because he shut out the Sydney snipers in that crucial contest, "Sugar Jim" may be nominated as "hero" of the series.

Freddie Metcalfe is nominated as the coach of the year because he took the only players he could get at the last minute in October (only one had ever been on a title team before) and piloted them to the Canadian championship.

Best pro prospect according to a concensus of coaches, scouts and others was Grant Hall, the Moose Jaw boy playing left wing for Millionaires. He shared honors as top scorer with team-mate Bobby Walton. Each shot six goals.

In one week Hermie Gruhn experienced the happiest and unhappiest moments of his life. His mother died Monday. The hard-checking little forward attended the funeral in Winnipeg Thursday and returned to Regina to play a bang-up game Friday and help win the championship.

Gruhn, a member of the 1938 Canadian Junior champions, St. Boniface Seals, was the only Ranger ever to play with a championship team before.

A feature of the series was the geniality of both coaches—Bill Gill, of Sydney and Metcalfe. They gave the best co-operation to everyone working on the series and they always had a smile.

If Sydney had won, it would have been the fifth consecutive title for Kowcinak and McCreedy, the fourth in a row for Snowdon and the second straight for Walton.

SYDNEY BREAKS UP

Next year Snowdon and Walton will play in Montreal, either pro or amateur. McCreedy and Hall of Millionaires will attend pro training camps. Some others may, too, but others did not know what they will do. Several likely will return to Sydney.

It was a great year for Lester Patrick, described in Regina as Al Ritchie's right hand man. New York Rangers sponsored the new Canadian champions. A fly in the ointment for Lester is that Kunkel, Mario and Warwick, of Regina, are on Boston lists. On the New York Rangers' lists are Henry, Bladon, Cameron, Davidson, Bush and Sandelack. Gruhn will attend Montreal Canadiens' training camp. George Coops is joining the air force immediately.

About 35,000 fans, including those who did not pay, saw the six games of the finals in Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon.

FOULS WITH FOOD

CHICAGO, May 5—Fans sit in a new restaurant behind the plate at Wrigley Field and watch the game.

DATES SET FOR GOLF TOURNEYS

CALGARY, May 5—(CP)—Major golf tournaments in Alberta this summer have been scheduled as follows:

Alberta amateur at Calgary Golf and Country Club, July 10, 11, 12 and 13.

Alberta junior at Calgary Golf and Country club, July 18.

Alberta open at Edmonton, Aug 31 and Sept. 1.

Pennants Tell Story

CHICAGO, May 5.—A blue pennant flies from the Wrigley Field flagpole when the Cubs win, a white one when they lose.

Highly Favored Our Boots, Porter's Cap Just Also Rans

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5.—(AP)—By sending Whirlaway to the post only "half-dressed," Ben Jones, the magic man from Missouri, may have won the Kentucky derby for his chestnut cannonball.

While Whirly and some of the gallant gallopers who chased him home in Saturday's record-smashing run were being packed up Sunday for the trip to the Preakness next Saturday, it came to light that Whirlaway appears to have gone to the post with only one blinker and that this, with Jockey Eddie Arcaro's help, may have caused him to run straight.

This is no guarantee he'll win the Preakness, despite the bolt of lightning with which he struck the Churchill Downs stretch, and which probably won't be duplicated at a race track in a long time.

Newspaper photographs showing Whirlaway nearly head-on as he charged down the straight disclosed there was a blinker on only one side—over his right, or outside eye. The left eye, nearest the rail, was uncovered.

JUST ONE BLINKER

In his last two races, he ran out as he rounded into the stretch, and this caused his defeat in both instances. With his outside eye covered and his inside one bared, it probably tended to keep him from going in the direction in which he couldn't see.

The race Saturday—biggest Derby of them all—was a triumph of a trainer more than a horse, and his little stunt proved it all the more.

It's the story of six months of the toughest kind of work plan Ben ever had. He considered getting Whirlaway ready for that one big show the hardest training job of any in his 40 years of handling horses.

WELL RIDDEN

The Derby was the story, too, of jockey Arcaro's masterful ability to follow instructions and gave Warren Wright's flier the only ride by which he could have won.

Of all the three-year-olds who were pointing for the top spot for the year, Whirlaway was the No. 1 "bum" of last winter.

After leading the juvenile money winners in 1940, he suddenly became strictly an in-and-outer.

Arcarco and Jones had plotted Friday night for hours just where he was going to be at each sixteenth pole and just where he was going to make his move. As a result, Eddie let Whirlaway go just as the field straightened out for home.

He ran the fastest quarter in all the 66-year history of the Derby, 24 seconds flat, and wound up by clipping two-fifths of a second from Twenty-Grand's 10-year-old record by hitting the wire in 2:01 2-5.

RECORD CROWD

Some 100,000 spectators—officially estimated by Churchill Downs as the greatest crowd ever to see a race in America—screamed for the favorite son of the blue grass. It didn't matter that two long shots, Staretor and Market Wise, finished in the place and show positions, or that the pre-race choices, Porter's Cap and Our Boots (the latter came out of the race with a slight injury) both ran out of the money.

Whirlaway, winning by eight lengths, fully lived up to the great racing blood he inherited from his father, Blenheim, winner of the Derby at Epsom Downs in 1930. Another of Blenheim's colts, Mahmoud, a half brother of Whirlaway, won that famous English race in 1936. Blenheim was later brought to the United States by a group of American sportsmen and Whirlaway is the first of his American-bred sons to achieve fame. Bred in the Blue Grass country, Whirlaway is out of Dustwhirl, the daughter of Sweep.

PORTER'S CAP FOURTH

The chestnut colt won by coming up from eighth place in the field of 11.

Far down the track and out of the money were the "big horses" of this race—Charley (Lucky) Howard's Porter's Cap, and Royce Martin's Our Boots.

Only Johnstown in 1939 and Old Rosebud in 1914 ever made such a show of their field. The only contest in the race found the rank outsider in the field, Hugh Nesbitt's Staretor, driving to a neck decision over another long-shot, the New York owned Market Wise, from the barn of You Tufano, for second place. Porter's Cap, leading money winner among the three-year-olds up to now, finished fourth.

OUR BOOTS EIGHTH

Rocky Palladino's Little Beans, the invader from Boston, was fifth; the Texas speed horse, Robert Kleberg, Jr.'s Dispose, sixth; Tom Bragg's Blue Pair, seventh; Our Boots, eighth; J. Fred Byers' Robert Morris, ninth; Emerson F. Woodward's Valdina Paul, tenth; and trailing all the way, Cleveland Putnam's mud-running Swain, the Californian, who couldn't get started on the lightning fast track.

Whirlaway brought $61,275 to Owner Wright, the largest purse a winner ever picked up in the chase after this $75,000-added rainbow. He rewarded his backers a favorite's price of $7.80 for each $2 winning mutuel ticket held on him in the record-breaking Derby handle of $654,353.

Trainer Gets "Derby Jitters"

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 5—(AP)—Ben Jones, his work well done, didn't even bother to return to the stable Saturday after Whirlaway spread-eagled his field in the 67th Kentucky Derby.

Always a sufferer from "Derby jitters," the trainers' annual malady, "Plain Ben" was so limp after Whirly scored by eight lengths that he didn't feel up to making the quarter mile hike to his barn on the backstretch.

To most men, saddling a Derby winner would have been sufficient work for one day. But not Ben. He considered just as important that he be on hand to tighten the saddle girt on the $1,000 plater, Honey Chile, which closed out a perfect day for owner Warren Wright and Jones by winning the final race.

Only then did Jones decide to visit his Derby winner.

Bucky Walters Upsets Quiet Of Flatbush

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK, May 5—(BUP)—William Henry Walters, showing his customary good judgment wasn't worried over the weekend.

This despite the fact that by the close of last week he had become an object of hate, doubt and superstition on the part of Brooklyn Dodgers' fans.

William Henry Walters, better known as Bucky, is a lanky, bow-legged pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds and Friday before dusk he gave the Dodgers the business—but good! He let them down with seven stingy hits in 11 innings, last Thursday scored the winning run and snapped the Brooklyn winning streak which had reached nine games.

EXCLUSIVE

Far into the night Brooklyn fans, large and small, male and female, butcher, baker and candlestick maker, sat on the stoops of their homes and calld down maledictions on the head of William Henry Walters. For he now is established solidly as the enemy agent who comes along and puts out the fire every time the Dodgers get hot.

It was exactly a year ago that the Dodgers, riding a winning streak of nine games—Brooklyn is beginning to distrust that evil "nine"—walked into Crosley Field Cincinnati in an attempt to make it 10 straight.

Rosy visions of a pennant curved like a rainbow over the Gowanus canal. Hot arguments were raging in Flatbush over whether the Dodgers should play their part of the world series in Ebbets Field or rent the Yankee stadium, which has room for more than twice as many of the faithful. Children's banks were being looted by fathers who wanted to get their application for world series tickets in early.

And then out to the mound for the Cincinnati Reds walked William Henry Walters. The Brooklyn faithful didn't even bother to boo him. It was taken for granted that the Dodgers would belt the brains out of Walters and make it 10 straight. An argument broke out in the bleachers between two fans over whether any ball club ever had won 154 games and lost nine.

William Henry Walters began to fire his sinker ball at the Brooklyns and every time the ball sank so did the spirits of the fans. He gave the Dodgers only six hits, beat them 9 to 2 and the Reds went on to win the pennant.

PERFECT SET-UP

The gods of baseball, peering down on Ebbets Field, must have laughed their heads off when they saw what a beautiful set-up it was. Once more the Dodgers had won nine straight, once more babies' banks were being jimmied and once more William Henry Walters was making his bow-legged way to the pitching mound.

Well, it happened again only this time Walters added insult to injury. He teased the Brooklyns, lifting them to the heights of hope and then dashing them to the depths of despair. He let them fill the bases in the ninth inning and then struck out Pete Coscarart, leaving the winning run on third. He let them fill the bases in the 11th inning and then, oh, sad and sorrowful day, struck out two pinch-hitters in a row—Pete Reiser and Babe Phelps, leaving the tying and winning runs on base.

SMACKED DOUBLE

But before that happened it had occurred to William Henry Walters that it might be a good idea for him to get out of Brooklyn before nightfall. So in the first half of the 11th he smacked a nice double and then scored what proved to be the winning run when Eddie Joost singled.

Outwitting pursuing Dodger fans by taking the short cut through Bad Man's Bend, William Henry Walters barricaded himself safely in a Boston hotel. The sheriff swore in deputies and promised him protection.

So William Henry Walters was not worried over the weekend. On the contrary, he rather enjoyed himself!

Rumor Of Second Bobby Jones Proves Merely Idle Report As Son Blows Lead

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., May 5.—(BUP)—Golf fans said after 1930 that there would never be another Jones and it's too bad the statement didn't stick. It would have saved a shy, earnest youngster a lot of discomfort Saturday.

The kid was Bobby Jones III, playing in his first golf tournament at the age of 14. He entered the final round of the Southern Prep and High School championship with the awesome score of 193 for the first 36 holes of the medal event.

Young Jones was on the spot from the start. The son of the grand-slammer turned in a score of 44 for the first nine holes which was in line with his practice average of between 85 and 90 for 18. But word had gone round that here was another Bobby Jones, and at the turn the gallery swarmed around him asking his score. He posed for pictures and answered countless questions.

EXCLUSIVE

It was enough to throw any novice off stride and young Bobby, who had parred three holes and made one birdie on his first nine, lost his touch. His score began climbing and to top it off there was his father watching him come home on the 18th. Bobby three-putted for a round of 95.

"Tough luck, son, you'll settle down," said the elder Jones. But young Bobby didn't settle down. He skied up to 98 on the second round.

Young Jones went out for the final round exactly 50 strokes off the pace. Tied at 143 for the lead were Sonny Ellis, 16, of Columbus, Ga., and Harrison, 17, of Augusta, Ga.

Defending champion Gene Dahlbender Jones' teammate from Mariest Prep school in Atlanta, was a stroke back at 144. Ashby Taylor of Augusta was fourth with 146.

LINDBERGH IS SURE GERMANS ARE SUPERIOR

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh asserted again Saturday night that the United States is not prepared to wage war abroad successfully but said Americans "must and can defend our own nation."

He stressed in an address to an America First committee rally what he termed "our inadequacy" in the air. The crowd was estimated at 15,000.

He claimed that no matter how many planes the United States built and sent to Britain the British Isles could not be made stronger than Germany in military aviation.

"Not only is the performance of some of our vital types of service aircraft inadequate, but our total air force in the United States today, including both army and navy, both modern and obsolete types, is not more than Germany can produce in a few weeks," Lindbergh claimed. "It is a small fraction of her present air force. To enter a European war today with our air force would be almost as great a folly as that committed by France when she declared war on Germany in 1939."

It was Lindbergh's first speech since he resigned his colonel's commission in the Air Corps reserve last Monday. The resignation followed President Roosevelt's press conference statement grouping Lindbergh with appeasers of the revolutionary war and the copperheads of the civil war.

Prince Rupert 'B's' Pile Up Big Score Against Mayfair

Getting away to a flying start in McMullen Cup competitions, Highlands golfers scored a double victory on Sunday in the opening day's matches against Edmonton Golf and Country Club teams.

Highlands "A" pairs playing at the Country Club on the latter's official 1941 start scored a 35-15 victory and their "B's" on their own course posted up a 38-12 win.

Playing on the Mayfair course, members of the "A" Prince Rubert team found themselves faced with the short end of a 40-10 score. The "B" team on their home course however redeemed the Prince Rupert organization, putting the Mayfair men under with a 48-2 drubbing.

Swinging the niblick into victory shape for the Mayfair "A's" were shuch stalward golfers as the Jack Starky-Dr. J. Elliott and Glen Gray-D. E. McLeod couplets. C. Gregory and G. Hutton did what they could for the Prince Rupert club with a total score of 9. Final score was 40-10 for Mayfair.

Outstanding in the Prince Rupert "B" team were E. New and E. Johnston together with J. Barton and R. Cooper with 48. For the Mayfair "B's" Dr. Watson-Alan Nash and A. Templeton-H. Illingworth did their best but failed to make anything better than a "2" mark on their score cards.

Across the city at the haunts of Country Club players, both the home teams "A" and "B" were defeated by the Highlands teams, helped by such shot-makers as Alex Olynyk, their club pro., Burns Martell and Pete Olynyk. W. J. Dick and Bill McAfee were outstanding Country Club players. Final scores were: "A", Highlands 35, Country Club 15; "B", Highlands 38, Country Club 12.

Ottawa Announces War Contracts To Firms In Alberta

OTTAWA, May 5.—(CP)—Contracts awarded by the department of munitions and supply in the week ending April 25 numbered 2,160 and totalled $9,775,065, the department announced Sunday.

Contracts of more than $5,000 awarded during the week included:

Kitchen and dining room equipment: D. V. Cope and Co., Calgary, $6,432.

Construction and defence projects: City of Medicine Hat, Medicine Hat, Alta., $34,569; Buchan Construction Co., Calgary, $5,565.

Capital expenditure: Mackenzie Air Service Ltd., Edmonton, $105,160.

"Hat Trick"

LONDON, May 5.—(CP)—A United States-built Havoc fighter plane turned the "hat trick" when its guns shot down a German plane over France during the week-end, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported tonight. "The same machine with the same crew performed the same feat on two nights last week," the BBC said.

Thousands Homeless

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, May 5.—(AP)—At least 20,000 persons were homeless Sunday night and the entire business district of this port city was inundated by the worst floods ever recorded in the southern Brazil state of Rio Grande Do Sul.

FLAX FEATURES GRAIN TRADING

WINNIPEG, May 5.—(CP)—The trading spotlight swung to flax on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today as wheat futures prices started another week without moving from their minimum levels of 75⅞ for May wheat and 77½ cents a bushel for July.

Eastern houses and crushers found offerings thin in flax and shot prices as much as nine cents over the previous close with light purchases. Moderate selling crept in at top levels but values held most of their broad gains.

Giant Skeleton Of Dinosaur Is Found At River

Giant skeleton of a dinosaur, believed to be intact, has been discovered by C. C. Moller, amateur Edmonton archaeologist, in the Saskatchewan river valley just below the Edmonton Golf and Country Club.

The fossilized bones of the prehistoric monster were buried under sand on a gravel bar at the bottom of a 300-foot embankment. This bar is usually under water, and Mr. Moller is working against time to have the remains removed before the high water period which usually starts about June 1.

Sections of the fossil have been examined by University of Alberta authorities and they are satisfied it is genuine.

Mr. Moller is using block and tackle to excavate the fossil, and as sections are taken from the sand bar they will be floated down river on a raft.

This is the first near complete dinosaur fossil discovered in Alberta north of the Red Deer Valley, but Mr. Moller is confident that hundreds of such fossils can be found in the Saskatchewan river valley.

The Edmonton discovery dwarfs those made in the Red Deer valley. The leg of the specimen found here measures 12 feet from hip to toe, and makes those found in the Red Deer district look like "puppies".

Remission Of Gasoline Tax Now Extended

Extension of the list of those entitled to receive rebate of six cents on the seven-a-gallon gasoline tax imposed by the provincial government, is provided in an order-in-council passed by the executive council.

A tax of one cent a gallon is paid by farmers who use the purple colored gasoline in their tractors for farm operations.

Under provisions of the new order, the following will be entitled to a six cents a gallon rebate: Operation of airplanes, motor boats, stationary engines, portable engines and tractors when used elsewhere than on public highways, logging trucks when used exclusively on highways other than public, railway cars and other automotive vehicles running only on rails or tracks, vehicles owned, controlled and operated solely by a municipality and exclusively used within that municipality for any industrial purpose other than in the operation of motor vehicles.

In addition, the six cents a gallon rebate can be obtained for operation of domestic appliances and for lighting and heating purposes.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

This is National Posture Week. That the nation will be posture conscious—for a week, at least—is the work of S. H. Camp, of Jackson, Michigan, who stresses an erect carriage as the first requirement for keeping fit and rarin' to go.

It is Mr. Camp's theory that you can't have a naturally good posture without cultivating the habit of sitting and standing correctly at work and play. When the proper alignment of the body is maintained, less expenditure of effort is demanded and the resultant fatigue is lessened.

Also, good posture makes you look slimmer. If you make a practice of holding the body segments in line, you are not nearly so susceptible to a dowager's hump or a double chin.

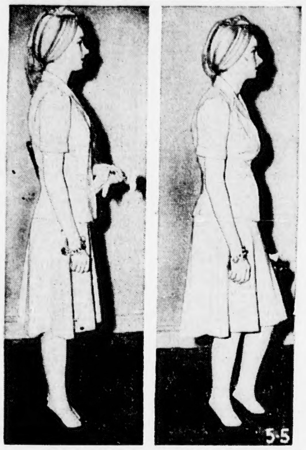
There is a single rule which, put into steady practice, would be enough to guarantee beautiful alignment of your figure. That is simply to pull up—up with the lower abdominal wall, the chest and the top of the head.

But after going along in a slump for years, it isn't easy to pull yourself up to your full height and take all the slack out of your figure. If you are in the habit of letting your hips trail, you may need to acquire flexibility through this region before you can rely on the up-pull along the front abdominal line to draw the hips down and under. Limber up by standing on the floor on the knees, stretch the midriff slim, then folding up—sit back on the knees, back curved and head resting on folded arms on floor.

When sitting in a straight chair, try to press the small of the back against the back of the chair as you pull up with the abdominal. Whether sitting or standing, make it a rule to carry your hips under you.

If you have a tendency to round shoulders, lie down on the floor for half an hour every day with a folded towel directly under the outcurve of the shoulders—that will gradually straighten you out.

To overcome a dowager's hump and double chin, lie on the back on the floor with the knees flexed and try to flatten the entire spine against the floor, particularly the line at the back of the neck. Another good exercise is to lie face downward on the floor with arms straight out at sides, shoulder level, then, raising head and chest off the floor, force arms backward as far as possible.



Did you know that it takes less energy to stand correctly? Graphically illustrated above is the effect good and bad posture have on personality and general appearance.

On The Farm Front

By British United Press

HOW much wheat can I market in 1941 and 1942?

That is the question many farmers are asking officials of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Officials of the board say it is an extremely hard question to answer, until they know the size and distribution of the 1941 harvest. Any figure given now, they say, may prove to be quite incorrect and the best answer can only be given by going into the question in detail.

EXCLUSIVE

To begin with, the Dominion government has authorized the Canadian Wheat Board to restrict marketings of wheat in Canada to a total of 230 million bushels. This means that wheat producers in the western provinces will be able to market about 223 million bushels of wheat between August 1, 1941, and July 31, 1942.

To carry out this restriction of wheat deliveries, the Wheat Board has been authorized to limit deliveries of wheat from producers to 65 per cent of their 1940 acreages. This applies to individual producers.

For example, if a wheat producer had 100 acres of wheat in 1940, his wheat marketing quota will be calculated on 65 acres in 1941 and 1942. If a wheat producer had 200 acres of wheat in 1940, his wheat marketing quota will be calculated on 130 acres in 1941 and 1942.

AS a start toward calculation of the marketing quota, each farmer can take 65 per cent of his sworn acreage on his 1940 permit book. Certain exceptions to the 65 per cent rule have already been made for farmers with exceedingly large or small 1940 wheat acreages in proportion to the size of their farms.

Now that the farmer has the wheat acreage upon which his wheat deliveries will be based, he will want some idea of the number of bushels he can deliver. The difficulty here is that there is no way of forecasting the size of the crop in advance—nor the distribution of the crop at the various yields—high and low. If wheat acreage in 1941 is reduced to 65 per cent of the 1940 acreages, only a relatively high yield per acre could cause surplus wheat production to materially exceed the 223 million bushels which can be marketed during 1941 and 1942.

If, however, there is not a full reduction in wheat acreage in 1941 acreages, then the amount of wheat which must be held on farms will be distributed among all farmers on an equitable basis. This however, will not apply to farmers with very low yields per acre. Such farmers probably will be able to market all the wheat grown, except seed and feed.

EXCEPT under abnormally high yields, the board believes the major restrictions will result from the 65 per cent average basis. This means that farmers can look forward to delivering from 65 per cent of their wheat acreage—all of their 1941 production if the yield is light or moderate. If the yield is heavy, however, they can expect that their deliveries will be based on the average yield per acre in their district, less their proportionate share of the wheat which must be held on farms.

Wheat producers are justified in assuming that if there is a full reduction in acreage in 1941—and if an average yield per acre is harvested in 1941—they will be able to deliver the greater part of the average yield per acre. This average yield will be harvested from 65 per cent of the 1940 wheat acreages. At the present time it is impossible to say what the per acre quota will be on 65 per cent of the wheat acreage, other than the previous general statement.

The board says that any one figure for wheat marketing per acre is pure guess-work. The board makes this statement, however:

"If the full acreage reduction of 35 per cent, or more, is realized and if the general yield per acre is above average, then the producers will be able to deliver in 1941 and 1942 a high percentage of the production of 65 per cent of their 1940 acreage.

BRITISH STAND IN MIDDLE EAST REACHING TEST

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO, Egypt, May 5—(AP)—Beset by an Italian-German drive from the Libyan desert, trouble in Iraq and the threat of a German thrust toward Syria, Britain's stand in the Near East athwart the Suez Canal has come to its severe test.

British sources viewed the situation today as admittedly not an easy one as the fight, now that a clean-up in Ethiopia seems near, entered a new defensive phase.

Weighing against the British in the Suez stand are losses in the Greek campaign—comparatively low in men but considerable in airplanes and military vehicles.

POINTS IN FAVOR

Counted by the British in their favor are constantly-arriving reinforcements and war supplies, including planes, from United States.

Axis forces in the North African desert still hammered at the British garrison at the Libyan port to Tobruk, but their main spearhead toward Suez was reported halted, for the present, at Salum, just east of the Libyan-Egyptian frontier.

British authorities reported last night that Axis forces held a small sector in the dented western corner of Tobruk's outer defences but said the latest attack had been "definitely brought to a standstill" by British artillery fire.

(German and Italian communiques yesterday said the British attempted a tank-led counter-attack from the Tobruk defences but were thrown back.)

The summer heat has set in already, hampering vigorous campaigning, and to reach the Nile Valley the Germans and Italians would have to knock out first the British advance forces, then the strong defence lines thrown up by Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell when Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army was menacing Egypt last year.

DEFENCES NEAR MATRUH

(Presumably these principal defences are in the vicinity of Matruh, almost half way across northern Egypt from Salum to Alexandria.)

Turkey's position remains an important factor because of her location between Germany's Balkan armies and the route toward the Suez through French-mandated Syria or into Iraq, newest field of conflict.

Although Turkey is adhering to her alliance with Great Britain, it is not believed here now that anything short of direct attack by the Nazis would bring the Turks into the war on Britain's side.

And observers say that even though Turkey undoubtedly would fight now if attacked, they feel there is no telling what a month of German pressure might accomplish.

NAZI PLANES SHOT DOWN IN CRETE RAIDS

CAIRO, May 5.—(AP)—British planes have shot down four Nazi raiders over the Greek Island of Crete, the Royal Air Force announced today, indicating the Germans are beginning a long-expected intensive attack on Greece's new headquarters.

The war bulletin said anti-aircraft guns destroyed other Nazi planes over the island to which King George of Greece and his ministers moved before the fall of Athens.

In Libya, it reported, R.A.F. bombers raided the Axis air bases at Derna and Benina, near Benghazi. At least 100 Axis motor transport vehicles were listed as severely damaged by air attacks in North and East Africa.

Spain Takes Over Customs Control In Tangier Zone

LONDON, May 5.—(CP)—A Reuter's news agency dispatch from Tangier said Spain assumed control of customs today at that former internationalized zone in Africa, just across from Gibraltar.

Spain occupied the Tangier zone last June and later decreed it to be a Spanish protectorate. From 1928 until then the territory had been administered jointly by Spain, France and Britain.

Cars Caught In Blizzard Rescued By 2 Snowplows

ENUMCLAW, Wash., May 5.—(AP)—Two state highway department snowplows late Sunday night rescued between 25 and 30 automobiles blocked for several hours in Naches Pass, 80 miles east of here on the state's east-west highway, by a blizzard.

The Crystal Creek highway road camp sent out an emergency radio call and the two snowplows responded. The last automobile was towed out of the pass at 10 p.m. (P.S.T.)

At least three machines were badly damaged but no reports of serious personal injuries were received by officials.

Between five and six inches of snow fell within three hours, the highway department said.

Struggle To Determine Freedom U. S. Vice-Consul Tells Clubmen

Through The Mill

It seemed so smart to change the date
And make it look like this year's plate,
But fines of twenty bucks or more,
should make him wish he'd thought some more.

A man can become too ingenious in his efforts to practice thrift. A young chap found that out in police court Saturday after pleading guilty to driving his car without a 1941 license and with defacing a 1940 set of plates to make them look like this year's issue. He was caught by an alert R.C.M.P. traffic officer after an exciting chase for several blocks in the east end of the city.

"It was a bunch of foolishness, I'll admit," accused said.

"I think it was a bunch of crookedness," the court countered. There was a fine of $5 and costs or seven days for having no license and $15 and costs or 21 days, consecutive, for defacing the license plates.

A man who pleaded guilty to attempted suicide was placed on suspended sentence for 12 months. Police stated he had slashed his wrists after drinking heavily to ease the pain from chronic arthritis.

The supreme hour of trial is at hand for all citizens of North America and the decisions we now make and the manner in which we carry them out will determine our futures as free and independent nations, George L. Tolman, American vice-consol told members of the Kiwanis club at a luncheon in the Macdonald hotel, Monday.

Mr. Tolman spoke on the subject of "Relationships." He declared that relationships between Canada, the United States and Great Britain had never been better than they are at present.

COMMITTED SELF

"According to the latest test of public opinion in the United States," he said, "approximately 70 per cent of the population is for aid to Britain even at the risk of war. The U.S. has committed itself in the world struggle and intends to see the matter through."

Commercially, he said, the United States was Canada's largest market in 1939. Since then the trend has been the other way and total exports have increased more than 50 per cent.

The present premium on U.S. funds in Canada should be a favorable factor in increasing tourist trade, which is now placed at $175,000,000 annually.

STRONGHOLD OF DEMOCRACY

Canadians and Americans, he said, are now citizens of North America, which is one of the few remaining strongholds of democracy.

"As North Americans we are today, all of us, face to face—to use President Roosevelt's words—with the 'forces of evil which are bent on conquest of the world,' the speaker said.

"Our effort must be immense and it must be immediate," he said. "The time has come to face realities. We cannot remain in a country dominated by Nazi Germany. To believe this is to indulge in wishful thinking. The next step is appeasement and appeasement today means surrender."

Premier Aberhart Returns To City After Coast Visit

Following a brief visit to Vancouver and after spending the week-end at Calgary, Premier William Aberhart was back at his office on Monday.

Although the provincial government offices were closed in observance of Arbor Day, the premier called a cabinet meeting to discuss the recently brought down Dominion budget and the request of the Dominion that the provinces withdraw from the income and corporations tax fields.

The premier said that until the whole matter was reviewed by the cabinet he would be unable to make a statement, but would do so when deliberations are completed.

Canadian Corps To See New War Films

New and excellent sound films of war activity in the Balkans, Greece, Libya, the Mediterranean and over England and Scotland will be shown at the meeting of the Canadian Corps Association, Tuesday evening, in the Masonic Temple.

This is the last meeting of the season. Pictures also will show German mechanized forces, British airplanes being made, R.C.A.F. fliers in training and a balloon squadron in action.

Refreshments will be served at close of the meeting. The Corps' brass and bugle bands will attend.

Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION:

An appeal was made this week to the "Smiths of Edmonton" to join in a nation-wide campaign to raise funds for the purchase of Spitfires for Great Britain. The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter nosed around among the Smiths today and got opinions on the question: "What are your ideas on this suggestion?"

THE ANSWERS:

JIMMY SMITH, taxi proprietor: It's a good idea. There are a lot more Smiths around than any other clan, and I think we should capitalize on it for the sake of the war effort.

• • •

REV. J. FRAZER SMITH, minister: The idea I'm afraid would have one or two drawbacks. In the first place Canadians have been faced with a great many appeals for the war effort, and most of us are doing all we can in the way of voluntary contributions. However, since there are so many Smiths, it's quite possible that there are several in a position to give a little more for the war effort.

• • •

MRS. JOHN SMITH, housewife: I think that such a voluntary subscription would be a good idea. I've been expecting someone to start the ball rolling for some time now anyway, and I think the sooner the better.

• • •

G. E. H. SMITH, insurance man: Well, you know what the old saying is: "The Smiths will back up anything that will aid the war effort." As a matter of fact it was said after the last war that the Smiths had won the war—so I don't think there would be any trouble in organizing a campaign of this nature. I'm all in favor of it.

CLYDE S. SMITH, auctioneer: It's a good idea as far as it goes, but if Spitfires are needed why pick on the Smiths to finance them? Everyone should make some sort of donation to the fund. People are kept pretty busy these days with other war work.

• • •

H. BROCK SMITH, Hudson's Bay Co.: I'm related to around 1,000 of these people and when it comes to buying Spitfires I think the Smiths will be just as generous and enthusiastic a tribe as the Browns or the Robinsons. I guess if you had contributions from all the Smiths in Canada you'd have a real cross-section of our democracy.

STANLEY SMITH, 10217 132 street: I think it's one swell idea, and I'd heartily endorse such a movement.

FRANCIS SMITH, 9434 144 street: You've got me pretty early in the morning, but I think it's something original. Has it started yet?

• • •

MRS. J. A. SMITH, 10966 128 street: I think it would be a jolly good idea.

CLAUDE SMITH, 11229 95 street: I think you ought to be able to build an air fleet with all the Smiths we have in Canada.

EDMONTON HAS THUNDERSTORM DURING NIGHT

Dark clouds that hung on the horizon from late afternoon Sunday produced the first heavy rain and thunderstorm of the season between midnight and 1:30 a.m. Monday, with .45 inches of precipitation recorded. But by 8:30 a.m. skies were once again sunny, temperatures read 48 above and the forecast was "fair and mild." Barometric pressure was 27:20 increasing unsteadily.

Smoke has given way to light fogs in the near north but visibility is reported good and temperatures average 45 above.

Tribute Paid Dr. Buchanan At City Rites

Tribute to the late Rev. Dr. Thomas Clarke Buchanan, 91, whose death occurred here Thursday, was paid by several hundred friends and prominent United Church ministers at a funeral service in McDougall United church Sunday. Burial services were held Monday in Calgary. Dr. Buchanan was the father of Nelles V. Buchanan, well-known city barrister.

One of the founders of three colleges in the west, Wesley in Winnipeg, Mount Royal in Calgary and Alberta in Edmonton, Dr. Buchanan was minister of McDougall church from 1899 to 1903, when he was appointed superintendent of Methodist Missions in Alberta.

Officiating at the service Sunday were Rev. Dr. E. T. Scragg, chairman of the Edmonton United church presbytery; Rev. Dr. Thomas Powell, Calgary, supervisor of United church missions for northern Alberta; Rev. J. F. Woodsworth, superintendent of the Indian residential school, St. Albert; Rev. A. K. McMinn, minister of McDougall United church; Rev. S. H. Irving, minister of Norwood United church.

No C.C.F. Support For Mrs. Rogers Ronning Declares

Denial that his party will support the candidature of Mrs. Edith Rogers, former Social Credit member for Ponoka, in the Edmonton East federal by-election was made Monday by Chester A. Ronning, leader of the C.C.F. Party in Alberta.

In a statement Monday, Mr. Ronning said: "It has been brought to my attention that rumors have been circulated . . purporting to come from Mrs. Rogers to the effect that she was being accorded C.C.F. support as a prospective candidate in the Edmonton East by-election.

"I want to state emphatically that at no time has the C.C.F. ever given consideration to the candidacy of Mrs. Rogers.

"There is, therefore, no basis in fact for the circulation of these rumors."

Mrs. Rogers recently announced her intention to contest the Edmonton East constituency as a National Reform candidate.

Prairie Route For Road Urged

A prairie route for the proposed Alaska-U.S. highway will be urged by representatives of Edmonton's city council at a conference to be held at Regina on May 22, if a recommendation of the city commissioners is passed by the council at its next meeting. Invitation to attend the conference has been received by the city commissioners from Commissioner A. Aitken, Regina. The conference is being sponsored by the Regina Board of Trade.

Soldiers Do Landscaping When Trees Are Planted At Garrison

JOHN OLIVER

DRIVING along Kingsway, was impressed with the cairn, facing this broad highway, erected just in front of the Canadian Legion War Services hut and commemorating the Edmonton Fusiliers, CA, (A). It has a concrete face bearing a replica of the Fusiliers' regimental badge. Future of the regiment is unknown, but it is certain that the vicissitudes of war will decree that it will leave here and fight the good fight in distant parts. Wherever it goes, there also will go the confidence, respect and best wishes of Edmontonians, who, through the cairn, will be constantly reminded that the regiment was recruited and trained here.

It is a fitting tribute, as the present unit carries on the splendid traditions established by its parent regiment, the 101st Edmonton Fusiliers, which in August, 1914, was one of the first units in the Dominion to volunteer 100 per cent. for active service and the offer being accepted, was one of the first to leave. Although it did not proceed to France intact it served as a reserve battalion and its men acquitted themselves with outstanding distinction in many battalions of the Canadian Corps.

This is Arbor day in Alberta, the day on which each and every resident is supposed to plant a tree and generally improve his or her garden. Arbor day varies in the different provinces, each setting its own. Therefore the holiday observance of same is restricted. Provincial offices, courts and banks are closed. Time was when the schools also joined in, but now their celebration is confined to limited exercises appropriate to the day. It is to be hoped that those enjoying a respite from daily labors will do their duty and either forestate or re-forestate. Somehow one gets the impression that those receiving a holiday in order to plant trees do not always apply themselves to this end as diligently as they should.

Passing along the streets, noticed some promising rose bushes, which reminds me that roses require plenty of sun. Overfeeding is as harmful as starving them. As a protection against disease and insect injury, spraying should begin with the breaking of the buds and continue until the foliage falls in the autumn. For complete protection the spray should take care of sucking and chewing insects and plant diseases.

Now that the first butterfly, the first buttercup, the first dandelion and other "firsts" have appeared, let it be known that the first straw hat also has been placed on view. Over the week-end, saw a young man striding briskly along Jasper, obviously pleased with both himself and his hat. It was a good day for initiating the headpiece for the season. So now, all you lads who have similar gear, don't hesitate to produce them because "the ice has been broken."

Also, white flannels and ducks appeared in profusion as tennis players swarmed to the courts to limber up and seek to get their Kinloch-like forehand drives or their Purcellesque services into mid-season form.

Encountered Lieut. C. A. L. Barford of the South Alberta Regiment, who was making a "flying" trip here for his marriage to Miss Isabelle Dawe. "Tommy," as he is popularly known, found time to have a beaker of java with Major Camille Brissette and Lieut. Robert Shaw of the Edmonton Fusiliers, CA, (R). Major Brissette, as "Tommy's" old adjutant and his senior in marriage by many years, proferred some good advice in between sips of the java.

Arbor Day was observed in traditional fashion at the Edmonton Garrison on Monday. Trees were planted in various parts of the encampment and on all sides were evidences of a general cleaning and "sprucing" up. Lt. Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant, dispatched trucks and a party of men to Fort Saskatchewan to collect pine trees between four and five feet high and other shrubs.

More shrubs are being obtained from the provincial forestry branch on Tuesday or Wednesday for planting around the encampment.

Trees also are being planted in the vicinity of the memorial cairn to the Edmonton Fusiliers, CA (A), erected in front of the Canadian Legion War Services hut facing Kingsway. The cairn, 10 feet square, is four feet high at the rear and two feet high at the front. It contains thousands of pebbles and stones brought by the Fusiliers in their "jeeps" from the gravel pit at 42nd street. The coat-of-arms on the face of the cairn is the work of Sergeant White of the Fusiliers. The coloring on the "arms" is considered by experts to be specially fine.

The area surrounding the cairn is being suitably decorated.

Throughout the camp, soldiers were busily engaged in a general clean-up to increase the effect of the beautfication resulting from the planting of many trees.

BATTALION IS HOST AT CITY BAND CONCERT

Edmonton Regiment Treats Citizens To Fine Musical Program

Attaining a standard of performance that won unqualified admiration and commendation from all members of the capacity audience, the regimental band of the 2nd Battalion Edmonton Regiment appeared in concert at the Strand theatre Sunday evening at 9 p.m. The band was under the baton of Sergeant-Major Edward Kirkwood and appeared by kind permission of Lt. Col. R. Walter Hale, M.C., officer commanding.

Seldom in the more than a quarter of a century that the Edmonton Regiment band—first as the 49th Battalion and now as the perpetuating unit the Enmonton Regiment—has this organization attained such an excellent standard as that heard Sunday.

EXPERT CONDUCTING

To Bandmaster Kirkwood goes infinite credit for his expert conducting and also for the splendid arrangements in which the band combined with a selected chorus. Mr. Kirkwood displayed ripe musicianship in his conducting, giving a musicianly performance that bespoke of intense study of and thorough familiarity with the music. It was conducting by a trained musician.

Ralph Mumford was assisting soloist, while highlights of the evening were the Band's presentation of extracts from Sigmund Romberg's operetta The Desert Song, assisted by a selected chorus.

Calling for cheers that echoed throughout the packed theatre were the selections, "Deep Purple," and Ferde Grofe's "On The Trail."

Other numbers on the program included: March, Military Maestro, Becker; medley of Gilbert and Sullivan songs; Westminster and In Town Tonight from London Suite, Eric Coates; Serenade, Schubert and Torch Dance, Edward German by chorus and band; patrol Wee McGregor, H. G. Amers; There'll Always Be An England, by the band. The regiment's bugle call and regimental march past, Bonnie Dundee, heralded the fall of the curtain.

Trumpet trio, composed of Sgt. J. Chadwick and Trumpeters Cliff Wright and H. Hepburn was a popular feature of the evening's entertainment.

Members of the chorus were: sopranos, Marie Adkisson, Mrs. Leonard Dawes, Doris Kirkwood, Edith Rocque, Evelyn Taylor; contraltos, Lillian Bowley, Violet Cumming, Katherine McCallum; tenors, Ted Anderson, Nick Cartmell, Joe Nadeau, James Richardson and Bill Smith; bases, W. J. Angus, Bernard Cartmell, Ian Docherty and Frank Williams.

OFFICERS ATTEND

Among the officers attending were Lt. Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant; Lt. Col. H. B. Jamieson, officer commanding the 2nd Bn., Edmonton Fusiliers, CA(R), and Maj. William Thompson, also of the Fusiliers; Maj. G. D. K. Kinnaird, second-in-command of the 2nd Bn., Edmonton Regiment, and Lt. G. Blais, adjutant, and Lt. Ronald Martland, Lt. H. R. Hammond, Lt. M. B. McColl, Lt. Frank Layton, Lt. W. O. Parlee, Lt. Bert Miller, all of the Edmonton Regiment.

Mothers' Day To Be Observed By Order Of Eagles

Instigators of the yearly observance of Mothers' Day on the second Monday in May, the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will mark the occasion again this year throughout Canada and the United States, and in this city the Edmonton Aerie No. 2102 will hold its special church service on Monday of next week. The following evening a banquet and dance will be held in the Corona hotel.

The first-known public plea for observance of Mothers' Day was made by Frank E. Hering, junior past worthy president of the South Bend, Ind., Aerie, in Indianapolis in 1904, and in 1912 the Grand Aerie enacted a statute urging yearly exercises to mark the occasion. Two years later President Wilson proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mothers' Day.

Participating in the banquet program will be Noreen Bristow, Jack Williams, W. Ness, Mrs. Campbell Bowen and Mrs. D. Sims. H. C. Ramsbottom is president of the Edmonton Aerie.

Rites Held For Pioneer Citizen

Pioneer resident of Edmonton, Mrs. Margaret E. Wilkins, 9559 103 avenue, who died May 1 after a lengthy illness, was buried in Beechmount cemetery Saturday, the Rev. A. F. Marsh officiating at the funeral service in the Andrews funeral chapel and at the graveside.

Mrs. Wilkins was born at London, Ont., and came to Edmonton in 1906 and resided here until her death.

She is survived by her husband, Walter Wilkins, and two sons, Cecil, overseas, and Chester in Edmonton, and one daughter, Mrs. Gladys Clements, Toronto; three brothers, George Yates at Ottawa, Sam Yates and Rudolf Yates at London, Ont.; and two sisters, Mrs. E. Blackwell, Chatham, and Miss Mary Yates, London.

North Edmonton Unit Of V.V.R. Holds Field Day West Of City

Taking full advantage of Edmonton's glorious summer-like weather, some 50 members of "A" company of the North Edmonton Battalion, V.V.R., under command of the O.C., Gordon Butler, held a most successful field day Sunday.

"Embussing" at 10 a.m. at the Westmount school, the convoy of cars made a quick run to a point five miles west of St. Albert, where the veterans, at the kind invitation of President Clyde Hook and Secretary A. J. Brown, and members, were guests at "Ye Pioneer Shooting Lodge," and were given the freedom of all the facilities of the lodge for the day.

TEST MOBILITY

Being a motorized company, the outing was designed partly to demonstrate and test the mobility of the unit, and this proved most successful.

Target, claypipe and disc shooting under supervision of Sergt.-Major Jack Blewett, was one of the features of the day, and some creditable scores were turned in. Messrs. Learmont and Blackburn scored possibles on the targets, while many others were but one or two points short of the perfect total. Clay pipes and discs were scattered in every direction, and practically all present were successful in winning a cigar for breaking one or more.

Horse-shoe pitching was another feature of the outing and in this Dick Stevenson proved himself the best of many good pitchers.

IN CHARGE

Harold Cruickshanks, second in command of the company, was in charge of all details in connection with the outing. Under the able supervision of Charlie Hepburn, a most satisfying luncheon was served. Huge quantities of boiled beans, roast beef, ham, baloney, sausages, hard-boiled eggs, spring onions, beets, radishes, sandwiches of all kinds and salad, were consumed, as only hungry he-men know how, the whole being washed down with hot coffee and—more hot coffee!

In passing a vote of thanks to Charlie Hepburn, whom many of those present had known and liked for 30 years or more, one speaker referred to him as "the greatest exponent of spontaneous generosity" he had ever known.

Half-way through the meal, Harold Cruickshanks rapped out the command, "Shun! orderly officer." The orderly officer (Charlie Hepburn) put the usual "Any complaints, men?" and every complaint a soldier had ever thought of was hurled at the unfortunate "officer for the day." But it was all good fun—for the meal was great.

"ONE OF THE BOYS"

Capt. Colin D. MacKenzie, officer commanding the North Edmonton Battalion, V.V.R., was the guest of the company for the day—and, as usual, was "one of the boys."

In a brief talk after lunch, Capt. MacKenzie accepted the kind invitation of the members of the Pioneer Shooting Club for the V.V.R. to use the facilities of the lodge at any time, and in thanking Secretary A. J. Brown, intimated the North Edmonton Battalion might hold field manoeuvres there some time in the near future.

Following lunch, there was more shooting, a most enjoyable route march, some more refreshments—and then home, a little sunburned perhaps, but certainly not hungry!—A. E. N.

Lillian Cram Is Bride Of Lieut. Sims

MARRIAGE vows were pledged at an interesting military wedding ceremony on Saturday evening in Holy Trinity Church, when Lillian Cram, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Cram became the bride of Lieut. Victor L. Sims, son of Mrs. T. C. Sims and the late Lt. Col. T. C. Sims. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon G. P. Gower.

Wearing a redingote-styled afternoon dress of dove silk crepe, a large picture hat of turquoise straw and carrying a bouquet of Johannahill and Briercrest roses, the bride was a charming picture as she was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Walter Cram.

Miss Nellie Cram, sister of the bride, was a pretty bridesmaid in her afternoon frock of spring violet and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas and corn flowers. Mr. A. D. Kennedy supported the bridegroom as best man. Miss Thelma Rice sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Mrs. Donald Sims played the wedding marches.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother, to the family and immediate friends of the bridal couple. To receive her guests, Mrs. Sims wore a grey crepe afternoon dress, a large black hat, and a shoulder corsage of briercrest roses.

Mrs. Ranald O. Bowen, sister of the bride, who received with the bridal party, wore a lime green afternoon dress, a large pink felt hat and a corsage of dainty pink rosebuds.

The young couple left for a short honeymoon in the southern part of the province. On return they will make their home in Edmonton.

Novel Concert Is Given At Hostess House

More than 150 guests, men of the active service and their friends, were in attendance at the regular Sunday evening concert arranged at the United War Services Y.M.C.A. Hostess House to enjoy the vocal, piano and instrumental numbers presented by the artists who contributed their talent to the evening's program.

Mrs. H. H. Nash acted as senior hostess, and Mrs. J. Cox and Miss Phyllis Rose were in charge of the canteen.

Lt. E. W. Sturrock acted as master of ceremonies, and the artists included Mrs. Doris Pettis, Mrs. Keeling, Miss Mabel Stutt, Miss Olive Manton, Miss Winnifred Shaw, Miss B. Shaw, Mr. John Tolson, Mr. William Townend, C. Powell, R.C.A.F., and Sterling Green, R.A.A.F.

Beauty School Classes Are Opened

Edmonton women "went to school" in the Macdonald hotel on Monday morning and afternoon, but to a very different type of school that formerly claimed their interest. From May 5 to May 10, under the supervision of Miss E. Hosie, personal representative of Helena Rubinstein, a Beauty School is being conducted for the benefit of all Edmonton women. Tickets to these classes may be obtained from any member of the Junior Hospital League, under whose auspices the school is being presented. Classes will be held in the morning, afternoon and evening.

Twenty women attended the class held on Monday afternoon. Seated around a large "U" shaped table, a mirror in front of each, they received valuable and educational lessons in the art of applying make-up. Each woman made up her own face, according to an individual chart made out by Miss Hosie.

Learning to make up one's face without appearing "made up" is an art that should be mastered by every woman, if she desires to make herself a "thing of beauty," and bring a measure of joy into a world that is darkened at present with the horrors and ugliness of war.

Your Baby And Mine

It would be ideal if children, small children at least, never had to accompany their parents on shopping trips.

They probably miss their naps. They get tired too easily; there is no good place to sit and rest. They are dressed for the street in an indoor temperature. They can't see what the parents are seeing. In elevators they are prisoners stuffed into a car on the level of other persons' knees. And they aren't interested in the first place. No wonder they cry and complain!

A mother, who lives on a busy street and sees lots of these shopping parents and their children, thinks it can't be repeated too often how thoughtless parents are of their children's comfort.

"I see so much of this from my window, Mrs. Eldred, and while I know you have mentioned it before I feel you should again. Do mothers ever realize how tired a child gets, being rushed along or draged by the arm? And when they cry to be picked up, all they get are slaps and shakes."

MOTHER TIRED TOO

You're right. Mothers should think. But we must remember that mothers are tired and cross too. They wouldn't choose to take their children if they had a safe place to leave them at home. They carry the load of their obligations and the child's safety, too. Let's be sorry for them both.

But there are ways of managing shopping if only mothers in a neighbor hood would be cooperative. It would take only one aggressive, persuasive mother to get five others together and let each be responsible for the children of all six for one half-day. Or, even for two or three hours. Then the other five would have five days free to do as they please; to work, to shop, to rest. That should be heaven to any busy mother without help.

The play equipment should be pooled. The children should go to the home of the mother who is caring for them, so that there is variety in the play place and no possibility of taking advantage of any one mother.

This is just the reason to start such an enterprise in neighborhoods where the children are running wild and unsupervised and the mothers getting hotter, crosser, and more impatient by the minute.

Our leaflet, "Backyard Play Equipment," is available on request. Write to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a three-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

EDUCATED WOMEN DONT SHUN MOTHERHOOD

Many people ignorantly believe that educated women do not want to have families, and that the bearing of babies is left mostly to the uneducated classes. Studies of college graduates show that educated women produce more than their share of children, and that their interest in home-making and motherhood is constantly increasing in recent years. Several hundred thousand young women are now taking special home-making courses in our schools, studying child-care, baby-feeding and infant-growth. Statistics show that the higher the education of married couples, the more children they have. This is a good sign.

McCoy Health Service

Perhaps there is no other disorder which takes the patient to the doctor more often for advice, than stomach trouble in the form of excessive flatulence, or gas. The usual cause of this gassy excess is of course dietary indiscretion, and the remedy lies in educating the patient what to eat, how much to eat, and in the proper combination. Eating too much is probably one of the first causes of flatulence, and bad combinations of food comes next as a cause of this distressing complaint. Then again, many victims realize that they like certain items of food, but that those particular items don't like them. For instance, garlic, onions, cooked cabbage, brussels sprouts, and many other foods cause digestive disorders in some, while others tolerate these foods without any trouble whatever. This demonstrates the fact that one man's food is another's poison" and since each individual is an entity within himself, no proscribed rules may be laid out to cover everyone. Foods should be selected with great care and those which cause digestive upset should be recognized and eliminated from the diet if good health is to be maintained. Then again there are many combinations which are taken in absolute innocence, which cause the victim to wonder just what is making his digestion suffer, and often the worst combination is that of the starchy foods mixed with acid fruits at the same meal. This may appear to be inconsequential, until, after several years of wrong food combinations, the victim ends up with stomach or peptic ulcers, which may take many months or years to remedy. Excessive stomach acidity often causes heartburn, and the patient becomes alarmed, and thinks that he has heart disease. This symptom is due to the pressure of the excess gas in the stomach, on the heart, and relief is often obtained by the use of bicarbonate of soda or some other antiacid.

The relief however is only temporary, and in order to obviate successive attacks, a complete revision of the diet should be made. There is so much needless suffering caused by wrong eating habits and the use o fimproper food combinations, that the remedy is often dismissed as impossible. The fact remains that most patients suffering from excessixe gas may obtain competent relief by the use of good food combinations and a regulated dietary. I suggest that if you are a victim, send for Dr. Frank McCoy's special article on "Flatulence Or Gas" and another entitled "Constructing A Menu". These articles will give you valuable help in selection of food and information on how to correct flatulence. Just send your request to the McCoy Health Service, enclosing a large self addressed envelope and ten cents in stamps, and I will see that your articles are sent right away.

Questions and Answers

Question—Mrs. F. T. writes: What is the infra-red lamp used for? I nave seen it advocated, but do not know what it is, or what it should be used for.

Answer—The infra-red treatment is primarily a heat treatment and is used for many conditions. It should be used in any case where any kind of heat treatment would be of value, for example in the relief of pain. The effect of heat is to induce an increased flow of blood through a part treated, thereby removing toxins into the general circulation to be disposed of through the organs of elimination.

Question—Mrs. T. K. writes: How would one overcome uric acid?

Answer: This question is a little ambiguous, since uric acid is found in a healthy body. When in excess, it may be due to some diseased condition such as rheumatism. A proper diagnosis should be made to determine the cause of the excess.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Many learned treatises are written for mothers on how to rear their children. This is a sinful waste of time, effort and good white paper, because in these days it is the children who rule the home and train Mother in the way they want her to go. Of course, it is like gilding the lily and painting the rose to offer any suggestion to these little tyrants who all seem to be born with a Hitler complex in full working order, and to know it all.

Dorothy Dix

Nevertheless, I am contemplating writing a book for their benefit on "How to Bring Up Mother." My first chapter will deal with the importance of baby getting off to an early start. The second day after your advent on the scene is not too early to take a firm stand about who is going to be the boss.

The way to do this is exceedingly simple, for, fortunately mothers are such easy marks that you can put over practically anything on them. All that you have to do in order to get the upper hand is to scream at the top of your voice until Mother gives in. After that you can take your formula when you feel like it instead of by the clock. You can refuse to go to sleep unless you are rocked and sung to and your first lisped words can be "To hell with the spinach."

In a word, you will be the one-who-must-be-obeyed in the household. The next way of bringing mother to heel is to have tantrums. When mother does anything to displease you, don't argue with her, just throw a fit.

Of course, being an infant of spirit, you will refuse from the first to demean yourself by submitting to any control or to obeying mother. When mother says "Darling, pick up your playthings," or, "precious angel, come to mommie," say firmly, "No, I won't" and stick to it.

Another thing at which you should get an early start is talking back to mother. Give her plenty of what old-fashioned people used to call "sass." Call her names. Say the most impudent and insulting things you can think of to her. This will break her spirit so completely that you will be able to swear at her and curse her when you are grown. Little beginnings make great endings, you know.

It is hardly necessary to tell you that you must be utterly selfish in dealing with mother. The ability to be that seems to come by nature to children, but anyway don't weaken when you see mother looking tired and shabby. Buy yourself a glamorous formal, while she turns her old silk for the fourth time.

And, most important of all, impress on mother that she is a fool while you are incarnate wisdom. Tell her over and over again that she is behind the times, a back number, an old fogy. That will shut her up when she tries to stop you from petting and joyriding and getting married in your teens.

But, after all, do modern children really need a manual on How to Bring Up Mother?

Before making your first play to this hand, you must do some analyzing. If declarer can pick up the king of diamonds, he has nine cold tricks, even without a heart trick, but in all probability the diamond king is wrong. First he must hold off one round of spades.

His next worry is whether or not North holds the ace of hearts, so before leading a diamond, he must lead a small heart to the queen. When the queen of hearts holds, he returns to his hand with a club and takes the diamond finesse.

South wins and may make the smart play of shifting to a heart. If he does, all West has to do is to play low and North will have the heart suit blocked with his ace ten.

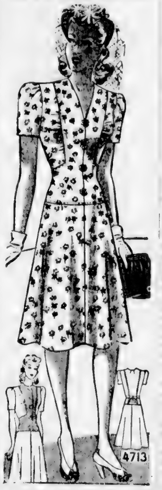
Bulletin Patterns

Gay Style Buttons Down Side



If you're young and full of that "glad-to-be-alive" spirit, here's the dress for you! Pattern 4713 by Anne Adams is designed with all the head-turning newness that make fashion such fun, with its beautiful simplicity too. You'd like the beautiful treatment of the popular new long-waisted effect. Two panels go down the front bodice to the waist, where they widen out to form a smooth, slim yoke. The back bodice has a single panel for perfect fit. There's softening for your bust-line in gathering at the side-bodice sections. Take your choice between a deep V-shaped neck with button trim and a round, high neckline with a button-opening down the front. If you want a really dramatic effect, you might try the front panels and the waist-yoke in a vivid singing color.

Pattern 4713 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 3⅛ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Send your order to Pattern Department, The Edmonton Bulletin, 60 Front Street West, Toronto, Ontario.

Commercial Art Course You Can Study at Home

His Package Design Makes A Hit

Would you like to be in the shoes of this successful commercial artist, getting good pay for his effective package design?

In such a big field as advertising art you have a good chance. A home study guide can help you try out your talents in letterheads, posters, any of the many kinds of commercial art work.

Perhaps you might go in for package styling. It's one of the newer opportunities in advertising art and it's fascinating work. Your study guide shows how you can work up a striking design, starting with a blank surface as in Figure 1.

You "break up" this surface, perhaps as in Figure 2, dividing it into unequal parts, which are more interesting than equal parts. And you try color contrasts for modern "eye-appeal." Then you work out details as in Figure 3.

You find that these simple principles succeed not only in package design, but in other phases of advertising art.

From our 32-page booklet learn how to develop successful ideas and designs in commercial art. Explains popular techniques, principles of design, color, display, lettering, layout. Describes reproduction processes. Tells how and where to sell art work.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of Advertising Design Self-Taught to Home Service, The Edmonton Bulletin, 60 Front Street West, Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Tenders for Highway Bituminous Surface Treatment

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the Director, Surveys and Engineering Branch, Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa, Ontario, will be received until noon, Monday, May 19, 1941, on the bituminous surface treatment of approximately twenty (20) miles of highway west of Banff in Banff National Park, Alberta.

The bituminous surface treatment of this highway will consist of a bituminous mix to be applied to the prepared base, and as detailed in the specifications.

Contractors must tender on the complete work and submit on the tender form unit prices covering all items. Contractors must forward with their tenders the security deposit specified in the general instructions to bidders.

Specifications, general instructions to bidders, and general location plan may be obtained from the following offices:

Chief Engineer, Engineering and Construction Service, Ottawa, Ontario.

Supervising Engineer, Engineering and Construction Service, Banff, Alberta.

Dominion Water and Power Bureau Offices, Calgary, Alberta, and Vancouver, British Columbia.

A charge of $5.00 will be made for each set of documents that are taken away from any of the said offices.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

CHARLES CAMSELL,
Deputy Minister
Department of Mines and Resources,
Surveys and Engineering Branch,
Ottawa, May 1, 1941.

River Transport Vessel Leaves From Waterways

First northbound river boat of Northern Transportation Company's fleet to cast off its mooring lines and head down river this season, the Radium Cruiser left Waterways at the week-end for Fort Chipewyan and Fort Fitzgerald.

River ice is clear in the Athabasca and upper Slave rivers, and there is a channel across the west end of Lake Athabasca it was reported by Capt. W. S. Hall, N.T. superintendent.

STATIONS FOR SALVAGE WILL SOON BE OPEN

Storage Space Problem—Girl Guides, Boy Scouts To Help

The city salvage committee hopes to have a definite announcement at the first of the week regarding depots which will be established for receiving of salvage, it was announced at the weekend by E. T. Ellerton, publicity chairman.

Securing of adequate space for the depots is still presenting a problem, but the special committee is busy arranging for suitable locations.

Salvage campaign headquarters telephone 22261 is besieged with inquiries, which indicate that citizens are eager to get the campaign in action.

Girl Guides will be given the opportunity to assist in the sorting of the various materials received. Boy Scouts also will help in the campaign.

The public will be kept informed as to the kinds of articles and materials which can be received as salvage and, as new markets are opened up, new material will be added to the list.

SERVICE MEN ENTERTAINED BY VETERANS

Audience of 500 soldiers, sailors airmen and civilians were kept Saturday evening in roars of laughter as members of the South Edmonton battalion of the Veterans' Volunteer Reserve presented a monster concert in the Empire theatre.

The veterans "went to town" in more ways than one, assisted by the Canadian Corps Boys' Band under the baton of Bandmaster Thomas Duguid and members of the Juneau School of Dancing. Featured entertainers were the Legionnaires, concert party of the Canadian Legion.

Many of the numbers were old favorites dating back to the South African war. Others pleased younger members of the audience with modern tunes presented in modern tempo. Sam Hobson accompanied at the piano.

Two Persons Are Slightly Injured In Street Mishap

Two persons were slightly hurt when two livery cars collided at the intersection of 107 street and 107 avenue at 10:20 p.m. Friday.

Miss Thelma Butlin, 11018 107 street, suffered an injury to the right elbow and Douglas Rutherford, No. 2 Training School, R.C.A.F., had a bruised right shoulder, following a collision between the cab in which they were riding south along 107 street and another taxi going west on 107 avenue.

The injured persons were taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital. Miss Butlin was released shortly after an x-ray examination revealed her injury was not serious. Rutherford was also released from hospital.

Jack Patterson, 10125 99 street, is said to have been the driver of the car in which Miss Butlin and Rutherford were passengers. Aik V. Ganberg, 9614 105A avenue, was the driver of the other car, according to police reports.

Both cars suffered considerable damage.

Ministers Leave For Parishes In Other Provinces

Associate minister of All Peoples' Mission, Rev. Joseph Wizniuk will leave Edmonton shortly to take up work in Manitoba as one of a number of ministerial changes approved by the transfer committee of the United Church headquarters at Toronto, it was learned Monday.

Also leaving Alberta will be Rev. Harold G. Lester, of Viking, who will go to the Bay of Quinte conference in Ontario. Rev. W. E. Sieber will return to Alberta from Saskatchewan. He is a former minister of the United Church at Stony Plain, Alta.

Bicycle Thieves Are Still Busy

Bicycle thieves are continuing activities in the city, with another machine reported stolen at the week-end. Julian Barchyn, 11922 93 street, reported his bicycle stolen from in front of the Acme pool room, 93 street and 118 avenue, Friday evening. The missing machine is painted red and white, bears serial No. 1C5809 and 1940 license No. 3103. There is a carrier on the front.

Kiwanis Concert

Members of the Edmonton Kiwanis Glee Club will present a concert in the drill hall at the Camrose military training centre May 14, it was learned Monday. The service club at that time will present a cup to Lt.-Col. Louis Scott, D.C.M., camp commandant, for musketry training competitions among the troops.

Queen's Cousin Weds

Leaving Brompton Oratory, London, are Captain James Bowes-Lyon, of the Grenadier Guards, and Miss Mary de Trafford, daughter of Sir Humphrey de Trafford, after their marriage. Captain Bowes-Lyon is the son of Captain Geoffrey Bowes-Lyon, a cousin of Queen Elizabeth.

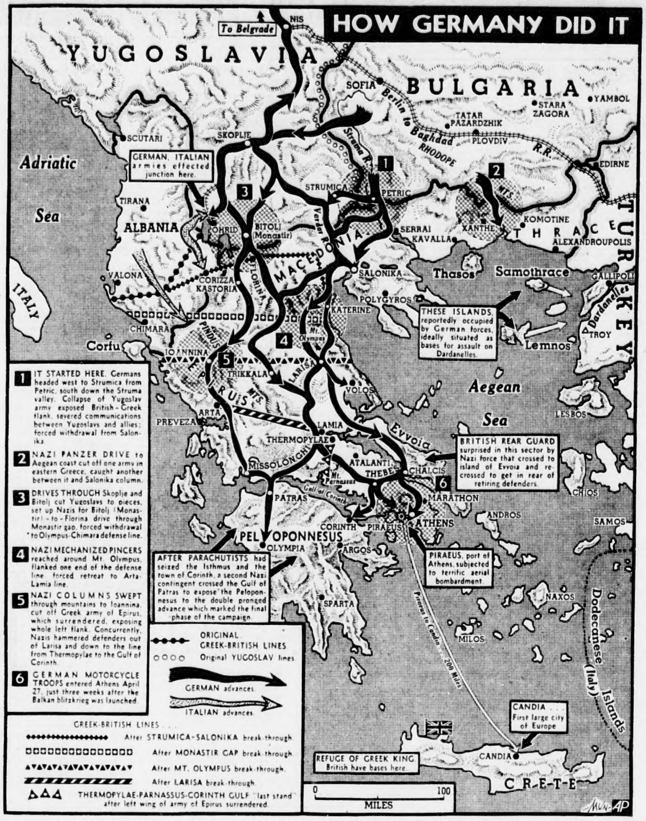
The two sharply contrasted photos above mark the beginning and the end of Charles A. Lindbergh's career in the United States army. The picture at the left shows him in 1923, as a cadet at Kelly Field, Tex., where the army trained him in the flying skill which later brought him world-wide renown. He was graduated from Kelly Field as a reserve second lieutenant. At the right Lindbergh is pictured at the recent "America First" rally in New York, making the speech which brought sharp criticism from the President and led the flyer to resign his commission as colonel in the Army Air Corps Reserve.

HOW GERMANY DID IT



GERMAN, ITALIAN armies effected junction here.

THESE ISLANDS, reportedly occupied by German forces, ideally situated as bases for assault on Dardanelles.

BRITISH REAR GUARD surprised in this sector by Nazi force that crossed to island of Evvoia and re-crossed to get in rear of retiring defenders.

PIRAEUS, port of Athens, subjected to terrific aerial bombardment.

AFTER PARACHUTISTS had seized the Isthmus and the town of Corinth, a second Nazi contingent crossed the Gulf of Patras to expose the Peloponnesus to the double pronged advance which marked the final phase of the campaign.

CANDIA . . . First large city of Europe

REFUGE OF GREEK KING. British have bases here.

1 IT STARTED HERE. Germans headed west to Strumica from Petric, south down the Struma valley. Collapse of Yugoslav army exposed British-Greek flank, severed communications between Yugoslavs and allies; forced withdrawal from Salonika.

2 NAZI PANZER DRIVE to Aegean coast cut off one army in eastern Greece, caught another between it and Salonika column.

3 DRIVES THROUGH Skoplje and Bitolj cut Yugoslavs to pieces, set up Nazis for Bitolj (Monastir)-to-Florina drive through Monastir gap, forced withdrawal to Olympus-Chimara defense line.

4 NAZI MECHANIZED PINCERS reached around Mt. Olympus, flanked one end of the defense line, forced retreat to Arta-Lamia line.

5 NAZI COLUMNS SWEPT through mountains to Ioannina, cut off Greek army of Epirus, which surrendered, exposing whole left flank. Concurrently, Nazis hammered defenders out of Larisa and down to the line from Thermopylae to the Gulf of Corinth.

6 GERMAN MOTORCYCLE TROOPS entered Athens April 27, just three weeks after the Balkan blitzkrieg was launched.

Hitler's generals used their Balkan legions as slashing swords to dissect Yugoslavia, re-forged them into sledgehammers to smash the Greco-British defenders back down the Grecian peninsula.

Briefly, that is a resume of Germany's operations after April 6, when the Nazi hordes got the "go" signal.

The Yugoslavs, in scattered, hastily mobilized divisions, sought to man the borders facing Italy, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria—all Axis-controlled. They had made a juncture with the Greco-British line near the southwest corner of Bulgaria, where the three countries meet.

• • • •

German panzer divisions slashed west from southwestern Bulgaria along the little Struma valley toward Strumnica. The Luftwaffe roared ahead, smearing concentration points, diorganizing communications.

The Yugoslavs, their dispositions incomplete, were thrown into chaos. The mechanized divisions rolled them back, took Strumnica, fanned out west over the roads converging on the town. Farther north, another panzer division repeated the performance. Together they rolled over Skoplje and Bitolj.

The Yugoslavs fell back and away from their union with the Greco-British. That allied force was being hammered frontally by another panzer column that headed south down the big Struma, toward Salonika. Retreat of the Yugoslavs left the allied flank and rear wide open to the German force surging unopposed down the Vardar valley.

East of Salonika, a German thrust reached the Aegean, cut off the easternmost Greek troops, trapped the others in eastern Greece.

Salonika fell, indefensible after that first flanking slash. The Allies were severed from the Yugoslavs. Nazi forces proceeded methodically to carve up Yugoslavia, trapping her quartered armies between circling pincers columns.

The Nazi forces that turned south found the Greco-British defenders in a hastily-disposed line from Mt. Olympus in a wide arc to Chimara. The invaders hurled a hammer-blow at Monastir gap, on the Allied left centre. The weakest link in the line, it gave, and the Nazis poured southeastward.

• • • •

Flanked again, the Greco-British forces withdrew to shorter lines, still bastioned by Mt. Olympus on the east. The Nazis turned their might on that fabled home of the gods. It was no finesse. They simply hurled masses of picked storm troops until defenders were inundated.

They rolled around Olympus, and the Anzacs and weary Greeks fell back again. Another Nazi column slashed southwest through Monastir gap, got behind the northwestern Greek army of Epirus. Those Greeks, already fighting a revived Italian army, were trapped. They surrendered and exposed the whole allied line to the southeast.

Larissa fell, and the Allies fell back again. They fell back in order and stubbornly. They wrote new records of valor on the old stage at Thermopylae. But the Germans came on, converging against the "last ditch" line that ran from Thermopylae past Mt. Parnassus to the gulf of Corinth.

That is the story of the partition of Yugoslavia by a series of swift slashes, of the steady advance through Greece implemented by a series of massed blows at key points.

R.A.F. Pilots Shower Tea On Holland After Bombing Germany

During their return flight from bombing raids over Germany, R.A.F. pilots recently "delivered" 75,000 small bags of tea to Dutch householders. The tea bags, centre, a gift from the Free Netherlands Indies, were released through the flare chute of the bombing planes. Attached to each bag was a colorful label bearing the words: "Holland will rise again . . . Greetings from the Free Netherlands Indies . . . Keep your chins up." British pilots are shown examining the bags, left and right, as they were loaded into the huge bombers.

Three-Fold Chic

Mrs. Charles Latham, prominent in "Bundles for Britain" work, and her two daughters, Natalie, left, and Mary, right, present charming examples of "mother-and-daughter" outfits, including the popular military note. The children's coats are light blue to match their mother's suit, and all three hats are regulation navy blue gob hats.

By VIDA HURST

"Talking about it isn't gong to help," Sybil insisted, while Faith said, "That's all the more reason for us to cling to the only security worth having. Home, marriage and children are more important today than they ever were."

For answer Miss Van took her hands from the dishwater and unfolding the newspaper pointed to a small advertisement in one corner of an inside page.

"If I were in your place I'd enroll in this Charm School. You'll never get anywhere without self confidence. They can teach you how to make the most of what you have and if you still want to be a secretary you can go to business college later. But my guess is you'll find something else for which you'll be more suited."

"Such as what?" Faith demanded but her eyes were sparkling with the impulsive desire to try Miss Van's suggestion.

"Such as being a model. You don't seem to realize it but you have a beautiful figure. My niece was speaking about it last night. Being an artist she notices such things."

CARELESS COMPLIMENT

Faith was thrilled. She had no idea that Miss Van was deliberately fabricating this compliment from Joan's careless words, "Her figure's not bad."

"I can't imagine ever having nerve enough to apply for such a position," she admitted, "but it wouldn't do any harm to enroll in the school for a few weeks. If they will take me."

"They'll take you. It's their business to get all the pupils they can."

Faith frowned.

"Daphne will think I've lost my mind."

"It's no one else's business where you're going to school," Miss Van said sternly. "And as far as Daphne is concerned you leave her to me."

What she said Faith never knew but that evening when Daphne came upstairs after their interview she said frankly, "I'm sorry about last night. Miss Van says you overheard me talking to Sybil."

"It doesn't matter," Faith assured her. "Everything you said was true."

"Look," Daphne cried, "I wouldn't have hurt you for anything. And I'd really like to have you stay with me. I'm up to my ears in debt at the moment. So if you'd like to share my room it's okay with me."

"I'll do it for awhile," Faith agreed. "If it doesn't work out I can always move."

HEIGHT AN ASSET

It took all the courage she had to enroll at the school Miss Van had suggested. But there were girls in that school so much less prepossessing that it gave Faith confidence. Fat girls and thin, nervous girls with high pitched voices and fluttering hands. Girls who were taking the course for purely social reasons and others like herself who hoped to use it in their profession. But from the first, she found that her height was an asset. It was ridiculous and a little sad to realize that the feature she had thought of as a handicap for so many years, was merely a mental hazard.

Prescribed exercises faithfully practiced did the rest. She had not been there a month before she was walking and standing correctly. And the inner changes were even more important. Faith was taught that one could be tactful without being insincere; interest in others was the quickest way to overcome shyness; frankness could be overdone but kindness which extended to every contact one made developed charm and personality.

Although at first she had not admitted her change of plans to Dahpne. Faith soon lost all fear of what anyone else might think. To her surprise then she found that both Daphne and Sybil were envious. It amused her to find how much prestige she had gained in their eyes. Proving the truth of what her teachers insisted upon that the world took you at your own estimation, and to apologize or under-rate your ability was fatal.

A new world seemed to have opened before Faith's gray eyes and much of the credit for this she gave to Miss Van. From the first day, the Dutch woman had taken an interest in her, and Faith soon discovered that Miss Van regarded all the girls in the house as her own. Without attempting to interfere in their lives, she gave them a service and affection they good naturedly took for granted. Faith seemed to be the only one who wondered at it, or who noticed that at times a secret sorrow cast its shadow across the face of the older woman, making her look both sad and stern.

ALL AT HOME

But she was apparently perfectly happy on that November evening when for once all of them were at home. Sybil and Faith were sitting on cushions before the fire while Daphne sprawled daintily upon the davenport and Miss Van sat in her little wooden rocker. Joan stiffly upright in the upholstered chair stared into the flames with pale blue eyes which may have seen much or nothing. From the beginning, Faith had felt uneasy under the cold scrutiny of Joan Van Aaken's eyes. Daphne might be thoughtless and vain, Sybil sophisticated and indifferent but Faith felt more comfortable with either of them than she did with Miss Van's niece.

Daphne was speaking. "I wonder if the time will ever come when I won't have to worry over money. Ye Gods, how I would like to find a wealthy husband."

"If you do he will probably be an old man," Sybil warned.

"I won't mind. I like older men better anyway."

"You wouldn't if you had to live with one," Faith remarked. "You'd be bored to death."

"No man with a lot of money could possibly bore me," Daphne declared.

Sybil laughed.

"Well personally I intend to steer clear of marriage. I prefer to support myself and [illegible] as I please. I'm accountable to no one but myself and I can spend my money for trips and pretty clothes."

"And in the end what will you have?" Miss Van demanded.

"I'll have a lot of memories," Sybil insisted. "And in 20 years I'll still have time enough to settle down, if I've changed my mind. While Faith will marry the first man who asks her and be a slave

RATHER BE A WIFE

"I wouldn't say the first man," Faith said refusing to be ruffled. "But I certainly would rather be a wife than one of those hard-boiled competent business women I see at lunch every day."

"Like me?" Sybil asked lazily.

"Like you in 20 years," Faith asserted. "The kind with faces that look as if they'd crack if they expressed any real emotion. Expensive clothes and hair cuts, smooth as glass and bitter and alone."

"You're the kind of girl men run from," Sybil retorted. "There is nothing farther from the mind of the modern young man's mind than marriage."

"Don't you believe it," Miss Van cried. "It's the women who have changed. Men are no different than they've always been."

It was then for the first time that Joan spoke, cruelly and without smiling.

"What would you know about it?" she asked. "When did you ever understand anything about the workings of a man's mind?"

Chapter Four

Joan Van Aaken's question cut through the peace of the little circle about the fire like a cold blast. Daphne lying full length on the davenport sat up while Sybil and Faith turned on the older woman, expecting her to rebuke her niece. But Miss Van was silent. Her rugged, homely face was white; her blue eyes sternly bright but she did not speak.

It was Daphne who cried, "That's mean, Joan! You ought to be ashamed."

JUST PRATTLING

"You make me tired," Joan announced. "All of you. Sitting here prattling of men and love. That's all that matters to you. Not one of you ever gives a thought to anything but your own petty affairs when all about you are problems of the most tremendous social significance. A world of tumult which may shortly crash about your ears."

"Talking about it isn't going to help," Sybil insisted while Faith said, "That's all the more reason for us to cling to the only security worth having. Homes, marriage and children are more important today than they ever were."

"And what about the people who haven't any homes; the boys who tramp the streets looking for jobs they'll never find, who wander from city to city hopping freight trains or bumming rides?"

Joan's eyes were fixed upon her aunt with peculiar intensity which made cold chills go up and down Faith's spine. And this time Miss Van answered her.

"All we can do is help as many individuals as our own lives contact," she said. "If each one would do that, there would be no need of discussion. Organizing in groups just to talk about it, sitting about night after night in cheap restaurants feeling sorry for people without doing anything, builds up a lot of unnecessary resentment."

"If you are referring to my friends," Joan said, "they happen to comprise some of the most intelligent people in this city. Some of them may not have jobs but at least they have brains. They are the ones who recognize the trend of the times and know the answer. And it will be an answer which may surprise you."

"Nothing would surprise me," Sybil assured her. "I'm shock proof. And nothing annoys me more than the discussion of social problems by the would-be intelligensia."

Daphne rose from the davenport and dropped down on the floor at Miss Van's feet.

"That's why I'm looking for a wealthy husband who will provide me with a satin-lined nest."

"There will be no wealthy husbands 20 years from now," Joan prophesied.

"Phooie," scoffed Daphne, leaning against Miss an's knees. "Why don't you hire a hall?"

Sybil laughed.

HER PRIVILEGE

"After all each of us is entitled to her own opinion. If Joan likes to sit around with a bunch of long haired ravens croaking, that's her privilege."

"Thanks!" Joan retorted. "I'm certainly wasting my time talking to you. There isn't a progressive mind in this house."

She stalked from the room and presently they heard her climbing the stairs to her studio on the third floor but her exit did not remove the feeling of strain she had caused. Miss Van was staring into the fire with the same stern look on her face Faith had noticed before and after a moment Daphne yawned and suggested that they go to bed.

ANNIVERSARIES FOR CHURCHES ARE OBSERVED

Robertson and Central United Hold Special Services

With Rev. Robert Hall, B.D., B.A., of Knox United Church, Saskatoon, in the pulpit, Robertson United Church celebrated its 31st anniversary Sunday while at Central United Church Rev. Daniel Young was the guest preacher on the occasion of that church's 15th anniversary.

"People should consider something more than organizations and security as essentials in our world today. The facts of fellowship, joy and fervor should also be considered," said Mr. Young. His topic was "The Church of Today."

GUEST SOLOISTS

Rev. Mr. Hall's morning topic was "This Rock" and in the evening he spoke on "The Co-Operating Faith." Noreen Bristow and William Angus were guest soloists at the services and a reception and social hour followed the evening worship in Robertson church.

Under Commanding Officer Captain G. S. Crossley, about 400 officers and men of the second corps troops of the Petrol Park Patrol, R.S.A.S.C., paraded to First Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

Roman Catholic members of the Petrol Park attended a pontifical high mass at St. Joseph's Cathedral, and following the services the two groups reformed at Jasper and 109 street and returned to the Prince of Wales Armory.

At the First Presbyterian church service Sunday morning Rev. J. MacBeath Miller spoke on "The Battle For Freedom."

"Freedom is a relative thing, and its three great enemies are resentment, self-centreness and guilt," the minister said. "We want freedom for a completely developed personality for the individual, and secondly as an answer to race, social and economic barriers within the international community."

Text of Canon G. P. Gower's sermon at Christ Church Sunday was from the Book of Samuel ". . . My family had a sacrifice and my brother commanded me to be there."

He compared the text to the suffering of mother England and the strong ties that exist between her and the large family of nations that make up the Commonwealth.

TITANIC STRUGGLE

". . . Anyone not moved by the present titanic struggle of the motherland," Rev. Gower continued, "is dead to love, to faith and to the issue of that basic loyalty that has held us together through the centuries."

He referred to the church communion as a great fellowship of the separated and a fellowship of the dying with the living.

". . . There is a sacrifice in every city, every home, every life, as well as in every country and we cannot avoid it even if we would," the minister concluded.

Rev. H. S. Hillyer, Baptist missionary from Bolivia, was the evening speaker at First Baptist church Sunday, and a rally of all Baptist churches in the city was held to hear Mr. Hillyer's description of the work being done for the Christian cause in the South American country.

Bible Society Is Carrying On Ministers Told

Emphasizing the great difficulties under which the publication of the Scriptures was being carried on in Great Britain, Rev. J. B. M. Armour, secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society for Canada and Newfoundland, addressed members of the Edmonton Ministerial Association at their monthly luncheon meeting at the Corona Hotel Monday. His subject was "The Bible Society In Wartime."

Although the work of the Society was restricted in many occupied countries, he assured his listeners that the things previously accomplished there would bear fruit in these difficult times. The future of the Society is reasonably hopeful under present conditions, he said, adding that the work was being done with fortitude and courage.

Rev. Daniel Young, vice-president, presided in the absence of Rev. J. Gordon Brown.

Tree-Planting Is Arbor Day Feature

Monday was observed throughout Alberta as Arbor day, when tribute will be paid to gardens and the planting of trees will be featured in schools. All provincial government offices were closed, including courts and police courts. Dominion offices remained open. Liquor vendors' stores and beer parlors were open.

Community Chest

Directors of the Edmonton community chest will meet tonight at eight o'clock in the Macdonald hotel to elect officers and consider plans. The 29 directors are elected from agencies which are members of the Council of Social Agencies.

Ruth Grizelle and Neva Cook, evangelists and musicians, are conducting evangelistic meetings Monday through Friday of this week, commencing at 8 p.m. at the Church of the Nazarene, 11112 95A street.
